OIL COMMITTEE TO PRY OUT NAME OF CODE PRINCIPAL

That Man Mentioned In

Senators Plan To Force

Identity of Soothing Informant.

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER.

Washington, March 5.—The climax in the oil scandal drama will come when the Senate committee on the Walsh investigation, committee on the oil scandal, will attempt to confirm their suspicion that President Coolidge gave private information to a representative of E. B. McLean, publisher of the Washington Post, and a prominent figure in the oil industry.

For a week, senators on the oil committee have been working quietly on a clue provided by one of the telegrams to McLean from Ira Bennett, his chief editorial writer here. Bennett will be called before the committee Thursday or Friday for a severe examination as to the hidden meaning of his message, sent January 20, which read:

"Saw principal. Delivered message. He says greatly appreciates and sends regards to you and Mrs. McLean. There will be no rocking of the boat and no resignations. He expects recognition from unwarranted political attacks."

Heflin in Direct Charge.

Voicing the suspicions of some senators who have been working on this message, Senator Heflin, of Alabama, openly declared on the floor of the Senate Wednesday that he thought the "principal" in the telegram was President Coolidge.

"I think the 'principal' referred to here is the president," Heflin said. "I think the statement in the telegram meant that the president had said he would not permit Denby to resign. I would like the committee to ask Mr. Bennett to explain in detail to explain exactly what he meant when he said the principal had been seen. I want to suggest a day in advance that the committee go very thoroughly and minutely into the details of this telegram."

Sen. Walsh, chief prosecutor on the oil committee, believes he will be able to establish the identity of the "principal" beyond any doubt.

On the day this telegram was sent, Secretary of the Navy Denby, emerging from a cabinet meeting stood on the steps of the white house executive office and declared he would not resign, and challenged the senate to go on record on the outer resolution which had been introduced by Senator Robinson, minority leader.

Efforts to determine whether Bennett saw the president that day have been unsuccessful. His name does not appear on the regular engagement book but the president sees many callers whose names are not listed. Secretary Slomp and members of the white house staff said they could not recall whether Bennett was there on January 23.

Has Known Course of Probe.
Previous disclosures have revealed that McLean is not only a secret agent of the department of justice, carrying

Women Flogged By Masked Band In Dublin, Claim

Anti-Vice Drive Gets Results as Lash Is Applied to Offenders.

Dublin, Ga., March 5.—(Special.) The anti-vice campaign for Dublin came to a climax a few nights ago when a band of masked citizens, said to have been representatives of the Ku Klux Klan, entered the alleged "red light district" of the city and laid waste to several residences. A few hours later, all women of section had drawn their money from local banks and departed. Money carried away is estimated at over $5,000. Monday houses occupied by these women were burned. This fire is thought to be of incendiary origin.

POLICE TOO SLOW IN FINDING KILLER OF DUFFYS, CLAIM

Chicago, March 5.—Although 13 new suspects were arrested today and William Engelke, arrested several days ago, was formally charged with murder and robbery, police admitted they still were far from the solution of the double slaying of John Duffy, alias Daugherty, and his wife, Mahelle Eley Duffy.

State's attorney Robert Crowe today charged the police with laxity in running down those responsible for the slayings and ordered two squads of detectives to begin a general roundup of suspects.

HOUSE TAX BILL CREATES DEFICIT, CLAIM OF SMOOT

Senate Committee To Report Bill With Mellon Surtax Schedule Instead of Compromise.

Washington, March 5.—The tax reduction bill passed by the house will have to be remodeled to provide for $100,000,000 more revenue, Chairman Smoot, of the senate finance committee, announced tonight on the eve of consideration of the measure by that committee.

Basing his calculations on estimates reported this week by the treasury department that the house bill would cut off $446,000,000 in revenue in the calendar year 1925, Mr. Smoot said this would fall by $100,000,000 to provide funds for the working expenses of the government, alone, exclusive of a soldier bonus bill of other pending extra appropriation measures.

Mr. Smoot declared that undoubtedly some of the tax rates would have to be changed to meet this expected deficit but expressed no opinion as to what taxes would be affected pending consideration of the bill by the senate committee. The principal tax reductions made by the house were in the personal income taxes, the miscellaneous or excise taxes and a special deduction of 25 per cent on earned incomes.

Back to Mellon Income Rates.
This problem will be presented to the committee tomorrow by Senator Smoot, when it holds its first session for consideration of the bill.

With tax legislation thus getting under way in the senate, Senators Watson, of Indiana, and Moses, of New Hampshire, republicans, called on President Coolidge today to inform him of the present outlook for the bill they were.

They expressed the opinion that the white house that the bill would be amended in committee to carry substantially the Mellon income rates. The bill as reported out by the house ways and means committee, carried these rates but they were substituted

SANTO DOMINGO TO FIGHT REPEATS IN ITS ELECTIONS

San Juan, Porto Rico, March 5.—Unusual precautions will be taken to prevent repeating in the presidential elections in Santo Domingo, scheduled for March 15, said Dominican newspapers.

In former elections each person was required to stick his finger in a pot of indelible ink as he voted. Later a chemical was supplied certain voters to remove the ink so they could vote again.

To guard against repeating in the coming election, not only will each voter be required to be marked, but an election official will shave him. Where the voter will be shaved is still under discussion, some advocating shaving the back of the hand, while others favor shaving a patch or half from the head back of the right ear. To be doubly sure, both ink and safety razors have been ordered.

MAGNUS JOHNSON LOOKS FOR POCKET FOR FARMER'S HAND

Washington, March 5.—Magnus Johnson, the dirt farmer senator from Minnesota, wants some one to indicate "a pocket" the farmer can put his hand into.

"This lack is filled, he said today, during an address on farm relief legislation, he will be ready to 'throw these reliefs overboard.' Your manufacturer has his hand in the pocket of the wholesaler," said Senator Johnson, "and the wholesaler has his hand in the pocket of the retailer, and the retailer is in the pocket of the farmer. Where is the pocket the farmer can get into? It isn't there."

COUNTY MATCHES CITY'S $100,000 FOR LLOYD SEWER

Commissioners Pass Appropriation To Extend

GIRLS' HIGH REQUEST GOES TO COMMITTEE

Council Delegation Asks
Fulton for $25,000 To Aid in Building Contagion Hospital.

Appropriation of $100,000 to match a like sum appropriated by the city for the extension of the Lloyd street sewer, marked the regular session of the Fulton county commissioners Wednesday at which requests for more than $400,000 for the construction of Girls' High school was referred to the finance committee for a report.

The Lloyd street sewer is a project which has been before the board for some time. The proposed construction will be the extension of the large trunk sewer which lies south of Grant park, running in the direction of South Boulevard. A number of representatives from city council spoke in behalf of the movement, the petition being granted after a short discussion.

The sum of $68,000 was asked for repairing and equipping city school grounds; the matter being referred to the finance committee for report, following a brief discussion.

New Hospital Plans.
A delegation, headed by Alderman Robert J. Gordon, appeared before the commissioners with a petition for an appropriation of $25,000 to aid in building a hospital for contagious diseases, an annex to Grady hospital. The matter was referred to the alms and juvenile committee for report. Alderman Gordon declared that the city was in vital need of such a place and declared that it is the intention to build one of a permanent nature. Plans call for a building to cost more than $200,000. Different sections will be devoted to the attention of various contagious diseases, it is stated.

Claude Buchanan, of city council, asked for an appropriation of $50,000 to construct the Grady street sewer. The commissioners declared that the financial condition of the county's treasury prevented the work for the present, at least. Mr. Buchanan declared that the building of this sewer would tend to serve the entire north side of Atlanta.

Numerous small requests for paving and grading were laid Wednesday, the majority of the petitions being referred to various committees for reports.

Edward F. Johnson, chairman of the board, presided.

SCOPE OF PROBE BY JURY WIDENS

Identity of Congressmen
Accused by Chicago Jury Withheld Pending Formal Indictment.

Washington, March 5.—Its sensibilities already overtaken by the kaleidoscopic career of the oil scandal, the national capital is about to witness the further ordeal of a grand jury investigation into astonishing charges against several important public officials.

President Coolidge has ordered that all of the mysterious allusions to wrong doing in Washington contained in a recent Chicago grand jury report be sifted to the bottom. Plans to carry his instructions into effect already have begun, and the presentation of evidence on which criminal indictments will be sought will start within a few days.

The charges, turned up incidentally in the course of the Chicago veterans' bureau inquiry, relate to a number of subjects unconnected with the bureau and involving at least two members of the house of representatives, who are alleged to have improperly accepted money.

No Names in Report.
At least one "high official" is accused of having used official information for purposes of speculation; liquor permit withdrawals are said to have been issued illegally, pardons are

MEXICAN BANDITS RAID U. S. RANCH IS PUSHED ASIDE

Large Amount of Live Stock "Rustled" Across
Rio Grande by Armed
Band of Outlaws.

Langtry, Texas, March 5.—Mexican bandits numbering 150 crossed the Rio Grande into American territory near here Wednesday, stole a large number of horses, cattle and supplies, and fled back into Mexico.

Many Americans in the Mexico districts opposite Langtry, are fleeing toward the border, and fear is expressed by officials of the Southern Pacific railroad for United States citizens still remaining on the ranches of the northern Mexican interior.

A day and night guard is being maintained at the great cattle near Langtry, according to Southern Pacific officials, who assert that Mexicans are crossing the border in droves in the Del Rio-Langtry region.

Rebels Bought Supplies.
A thorough investigation has revealed that two rebel leaders, General Emilio Rodriguez and Lieutenant Colonel Tiza, have visited general merchandise stores in Langtry recently, making heavy purchases of supplies and then departing for the interior of Mexico. Whether they were involved in the raid is not known.

Early Wednesday morning nine heavily armed Mexican bandits raided the San Miguel ranch in Mexico, near Del Rio, Tex., captured four Mexican ranch hands and carried them into the interior.

The leader of the bandits served notice upon the ranch foreman that he would return in a day or so for a ransom of $25,000 and if said ransom was not forthcoming he would destroy the ranch property.

The San Miguel ranch consists of a large tract of land, and is one of the best in the state. It is owned by a man who is a member of the Mexican revolution.

DAUGHERTY PROBE RESTS ON ABILITY OF TWO SENATORS

Temperaments of Brookhart and Wheeler Will Play Large Part in Success of Inquiry.

STRINGS OF POLITICS SURE OF EXPOSURE

Attorney General Likely To Turn on Critics and Bare Requests Made by Many Officials.

BY MARK SULLIVAN.

Washington, March 5.—In this Daugherty investigation, much is going to depend on whether Senator Brookhart, of Iowa, and Senator Wheeler, of Montana, happen to have the particular kind of ability and temperament adapted to get the best results from a tribunal of this kind. Senator Brookhart is chairman of the committee and Senator Wheeler is to fill the role of chief questioner.

It is no exaggeration to say that the principal cause of the good results secured in the oil investigation has been the unusual combination of qualities possessed by Senator Walsh, of Montana, who has the position of chief questioner for that committee. Walsh has a mind, long trained by legal contests with able adversaries, plus temperamental traits of dogged persistence accompanied by restraint of expression and manner.

The Daugherty committee has given Daugherty the right to be represented by counsel, and has allowed Daugherty's lawyers to have the privilege of "limited cross examination."

Danger Lurks in Privilege.

This privilege is a departure from the practice of the oil committee. There is no universal senate rule about allowing counsel to appear for persons accused or for witnesses. Sometimes it is done and sometimes not. In some past cases where senate committees have given the privilege of counsel, it has turned out that these outside lawyers engaged by the person being investigated, or by some of the interests involved, have been able to shift the whole color of the proceedings, and make the issue seem very different from what it started out to be. If these lawyers are men experienced in court work, they can sometimes do this by sheer ingenuity in the art of cross-examination and ability to take quick advantage of psychological situations as they arise.

Wheeler Lacks Restraint.

HOWARD MESSAGE ONE OF GOODWILL

New Ambassador From Great Britain Presents
Credentials to President
Coolidge.

Washington, March 5.—King George sees in the good understanding between Great Britain and the United States "the best guarantee for the future peace of the world."

This declaration was made today by President Coolidge at the request of the king by Sir Esme Howard and marked the presentation of the new ambassador's credentials to the American chief executive.

Replying to the ambassador's statement, President Coolidge asserted that the "conscious identity of general aims," existing between the United States and the British government "will be a mighty force in bringing to the world a just and lasting peace."

"Before leaving England," Sir Esme said, "I was charged both by his majesty, the king, and his prime minister with messages of cordial and sincere good will and friendship toward the United States and toward you, sir, as president of this great republic."

"The king," he added, "further desired me to say that he sees in the good understanding between the two countries the best guarantee for the future peace of the world. Both his majesty and the prime minister referred with heartfelt satisfaction to

POPE TO APPOINT NEW U. S. CARDINAL IS GOTHAM RUMOR

New York, March 5.—A rumor that Archbishop Hayes is to be made a cardinal at the Lenten consistory has been strengthened by the news that he will sail for Rome Saturday. According to the rumor, which has gained general credence in Catholic circles, the archbishop will be given the red hat and consecrated on March 26. He could not be reached Wednesday for confirmation or denial of the report.

RUM FLEET BACK ON 12-MILE LINE FOR SPRING TRADE

Squadron Led by British
"Istar" Slips in Under Cover of Fog to Famous Anchorage.

New York, March 5.—Slipping in from the high seas under cover of a heavy fog, 21 vessels, headed by the British steam yacht Istar, today had dropped anchor along Rum Row to dispose of 100,000 cases of liquor—$8,000,000 worth.

Thus the squadron presented to coast-guard cutters, who reported its discovery, approximately pre-holiday strength. There were 23 rum ships on the line before Christmas, but customs authorities say there are enough larger vessels there now to more than make up in cargo capacity for the slightly smaller number.

The price—also according to customs authorities—will be approximately $50 a case, f.o.b. Rum Row. They admitted that their efforts to board the Istar today met with as little success as attended a similar strategy attempted a year ago, when the British yacht first became "the flagship Istar" and "queen of the fleet."

Several New Ones.
Six steamships, all former tramp freighters, were described as the backbone of the fleet. There were two converted yachts smaller than the Istar, nine three-masted schooners and four nondescripts which the customs men termed "sea-going tugs, gas and sail."

There were several new name-plates among them, and enough new paint to indicate that a few commanders had taken advantage of the heavy weather and dull markets to slip quietly off to a haven for repairs, as well as fresh cargoes.

Find New Liaison Mode.
Coast guard cutter men today said they had discovered a new system of liaison established between the fleet and the shore since the treaty with Great Britain authorized search and seizure within 12 miles, or an hour's sail from port. Between the "mother ships" and the small two-motor motor-boats whose deep water zone of operations is limited, has been established a secondary fleet of intermediate sized craft, it was reported.

These "half-way ships," according to the authorities, are faster than the steamers and more easily maneuvered. They take a few hundred cases from the row, slip in a few miles nearer shore, and there drop anchor to await the arrival of the bottle fishermen, whose vocation is the smuggling of liquor to land runners.

The customs men declared these half-way craft meet each day at established rendezvous.

Arrayed on the floor of the secretary of state's office, at the capitol, Wednesday afternoon was a collection of solid brass weights and measures glittering in the rays of the sun, slanting through the high windows.

It was the first time these vessels had reflected the light of sunshine from their burnished sides for at least 56 years.

The collection comprises a full set of United States standard weights and measures, to which reference is made in an act of the Georgia legislature passed in 1839, as being then in the executive offices at the capitol at Milledgeville.

The packing case in which these brass measures and weights were packed, with no address on it, was discovered accidentally in the basement

NOTHING NEW.

Miami, Fla., March 5.—Attorney General Daugherty left Miami at 10:25 o'clock tonight for Washington, without making a statement on dispatches from Washington that his immediate retirement from the cabinet is impending.

Those close to the attorney general said that there "was nothing new in the dispatches" to the cabinet member and that he would not make a statement or talk for publication on the latest developments in the case.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Washington, March 5.—The question of Attorney General Daugherty's immediate retirement from the cabinet is again receiving serious consideration.

The situation today suddenly developed to a point where the selection of a successor was taken under advisement at the white house.

Those under consideration for the post include William S. Kenyon, former senator from Iowa and now judge of the Eighth United States circuit court of appeals; Frank S. Dietrich, federal district judge of Idaho, and Curtis D. Willbur, chief justice of the supreme court of California.

Steps to Feel Them Out.

Steps have been taken indirectly to ascertain from each of the three men asked whether he would accept if appointed, but no definite selection has been made.

One of the factors which have again brought the question to an acute issue was the situation resulting from disclosures in the recent Veterans' Bureau grand jury investigation at Chicago.

Some of these disclosures, according to information laid before President Coolidge, relate to matters over which Mr. Daugherty has had at least technical jurisdiction as head of the department of justice, and in which persons close to him were said to be involved.

Probe Would Distract.
During the past few days developments in the oil scandal have led the trail of that investigation, too, into the same department.

In addition, the question has arisen whether the attorney general, under the stress of the senate investigation of him and his department, will be able to give to his official duties the attention they merit.

All of these considerations have put a new face on the situation since Mr. Daugherty left Washington a week ago after apparently convincing the president he should be permitted to remain in office until the senate inquiry is concluded.

No Predictions Made.

White house officials decline to predict when the next move will come, but some of those high in administration believe that a request to the attorney general for his resignation is imminent.

The one element which apparently has contributed most to bring the question to a head has been information brought here from Chicago by John W. H. Crim, special government counsel in Veterans' Bureau affairs, will be in the city for a week after the grand jury proceedings. Although there has been no indication that evidence produced before the grand jury personally involved Mr. Daugherty himself, the ramifications of the inquiry have brought under examination close official and personal associations.

Touches Liquor and Pardons.

Some of the evidence related to liquor withdrawals and some of it to procurement of pardons for federal prisoners. Both of these matters are handled through the department of justice, and Mr. Daugherty is said to have given testimony before the grand jury in regard to them when he went to Chicago last week.

The facts have only recently reached President Coolidge and caused him to order immediate prosecutions outside of Veterans' Bureau matters. Acting Attorney General Seymour, whom Mr. Crim recently made his report, conferred Monday with the president and in addition the executive has been in conference with senators who have discussed the subject with Mr. Crim.

Crim Confers With Probers.

Only today Mr. Crim was closeted for almost three hours with the senate committee charged with investigating Mr. Daugherty, and was said to have laid before it important information for use in its inquiry.

The committee unanimously took no action which would interfere with the prosecutions in hand by Mr. Crim.

It has been indicated that in accepting a successor to Mr. Daugherty, the president would prefer to name a man from the west or middle-west, of outstanding reputation in the legal profession.

Records of Candidates.

Judge Kenyon, a former chairman of the senate farm bloc and generally regarded as of progressive leanings, resigned from the senate two years ago to accept the appointment to the federal court of appeals rendered by President Harding.

Judge Dietrich, a resident of Boise, Idaho, has been a federal judge since 1907. Chief Justice Wilbur, is a graduate of the naval academy. He began the practice of law in 1888, was elected to the superior court of Los Angeles in 1903, and became a member of the supreme court of California in 1919.

Others who have been urged for the attorney-generalship include Governor Alexander J. Cassock, of Michigan, and a former attorney general of that state, and Silas H. Strawn, of Chicago, one of those originally selected as a member of the special government counsel in the oil cases.

By THOMAS L. STOKES.

Washington, March 5.—Another story of secret "inside" influences, of pressure brought to stay the hand of justice, and of negligence of high officials, will be unfolded when the special senate committee investigating the department of justice begins to tear away the screen next week, according to those who have been close to developments.

The new Pandora's box will open when officials of the federal trade commission take the stand to give the facts regarding many cases prepared by them, and turned over to the department of justice, but most of which still lie dormant. Following a presentation of evidence in the cases, much of which is of a startling nature, witnesses directly connected with them will lay bare other facts.

Prominent Men to Be Called.

There are 555 cases altogether. Most of them are anti-trust suits, brought against large business, commercial and industrial interests whose tentacles reach out all over the country. Prominent industrial leaders will be in the list of witnesses called to testify. Some of them have political connections.

Witnesses who will testify against the department of justice, are already beginning to arrive in Washington and are only closeted with Senator Wheeler, of Montana, and the three members of the United Gas Insurance company in New York, one of the cases which will be probed very carefully, has been here for two weeks.

"This one case is of such importance that the impeachment of any attorney general," he said Wednesday.

Dropped on Silence Plea.

While nearly all of these cases were in the bill of particulars brought by Representative Keller, of Minnesota, in his attempt to impeach Daugherty last year, the committee dropped hearing the evidence when the attorney general declared that if the information were given out it would hinder prosecution of the cases.

The witness here on the gas case asked to be heard last year, but the hearings were stopped when he was given an opportunity. Although indictments were brought against the company for false testimony, Daugherty's sudden resignation, the case dropped. It is rumored that a United States senator is involved.

Involves Southern Pine Body.

This is one of numerous cases. Another series are the lumber cases, the most prominent of which was the suit brought against the Southern Pine association in February, 1921, by former Attorney General Palmer, and which is still dormant. Lumber companies throughout the south are members of the association.

A prominent politician who is said to have contributed to the republican campaign fund in 1920, heads one of the companies involved. He held an important honorary post during the Harding administration. It is shown in the report of the trade commission on the case that the companies which initiated formation of the Southern Pine association had previously been members of the Yellow Pine Manufacturers' association, which was dissolved by the state in 1913.

These companies agreed not to join a similar organization.

Lobbies Highly Paid.

According to findings of the trade commission, the successor organization is guilty of the same practices for which the old association was dissolved.

Throughout the reports of the trade commission are similar charges and extracts from communications of forces of such organizations, showing how pressure had been brought to bear here and of the maintenance of highly paid lobbyists.

One of the investigations will dig back into the last democratic administration. The report on the Southern Pine association case reveals that one of their representatives conferred with officials of the treasury during the Wilson administration regarding taxes on the lumber industry.

Sought Tax Benefit.

At this time congress was preparing revenue measures to pay war expenses, and pressure was being brought to bear by the lumber interests through their lobby in Washington to have basis of taxation made which would have cut their returns considerably. One of the officers wrote to the secretary of the association that he did not "think it is well, at least not psychologically, to attract attention to the extent in dollars and cents to which the industry is affected."

Among other important cases which will be delved into by the special committee, in addition to the gas case and 11 lumber cases, are the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad case, trust charges against the General Electric Co. and the American Tobacco company, P. Lorillard and company, Liggett & Meyers Tobacco company cases, various vehicle and implement cases, several cases concerning the glass concern cases and many others.

William J. Burns, chief of the department's bureau of investigation, instructed Mr. Jesse H. Jones, one of his agents, to wire McLean in code that the department of justice was about to investigate him. He was advised also of developments through a confidential employee attached to Daugherty's office, C. Bascom Slomp, secretary to the president, was a guest at McLean's cottage several times when he was in Florida recently, and called at their home here after they returned.

Democratic senators expect to complete this part of their investigation by showing that McLean's agent here had direct access to the president and received information from him.

Should this point be established, it would prove somewhat disconcerting to republican party leaders. Their chief solace in the present upheaval has been the supposition that Coolidge is a close friend of the president, and that he will be affected should it be disclosed that he was the "principal" referred to in the telegram from McLean's editor-in-chief.

the cordial relations now existing between the two countries. . . . that it will ever be my endeavor to maintain and promote in every way those cordial relations between the two countries so much desired not only by the high places in England, but also by every member of the British empire."

President Coolidge, in reply, said in part:

"The greetings and expressions of friendship which you bear from his majesty, the king, and from the prime minister of your country are cordially reciprocated and, together with your kind and generous expression of how he will be affected should it be disclosed that he was the 'principal' referred to in the telegram from McLean's editor-in-chief."

DAUGHERTY PROBE

ment. He is a lawyer, but his experience in that profession has been far short of that of Senator Walsh, for example. Senator Wheeler is also a lawyer with some experience as a prosecuting officer, having served five terms as federal district attorney in Montana. In some of his recent speeches on Daugherty, Senator Wheeler had a lack of restraint that did not help the case he was trying to make out. For example, he said that Daugherty was a friend of Doheny, Sinclair and McLean. If Senator Wheeler had omitted the first two names, his case would have been less subject to having its accuracy questioned; and if he had dwelt at length on the influence with McLean he would have had plenty of material with which to support his allegation.

"Ohio Crowd" to Play Part.

A good deal of the Daugherty investigation is expected to deal with the activities of what Washington sometimes refers to as "the Ohio crowd." By this phrase is meant a number of old friends and associates of Daugherty and some old associates of the Harding administration. According to the charges just beginning to be made, a number of these men came to Washington in the trial of the Harding administration, or set themselves up elsewhere, and took cases pending before various government departments. In these cases, according to the charges, the value of these men in their clients' affairs would be to get big fees, rested rather more on their presumed intimacy with Daugherty or Harding, or both, than on their real ability and experience.

The stories will now be subjected to the test of examination under oath. If there is even a fraction of truth in some of them as told in the gossip of Washington, the Daugherty investigation should reveal some things not only scandalous, but also contributing to the safety of nations by their dramatic quality and occasional support of the republicans as a unit.

Daugherty to Fight Back.

According to some of these stories, the ingenuity of the ways in which some men tried to convince other men of their loyalty to Daugherty, or Daugherty has been equal to any situation in a book or on the stage.

This particular fight is only a small portion of the charges against Daugherty's department of justice, which the senate committee will investigate. It is anticipated that a part of Daugherty's defense will be the force of turning on some of his critics and "showing up" requests made to him by senators and others for some friends who wanted jobs; and some other friends of Daugherty, or others whose pressing need was not a job, but a pardon or a cessation of prosecution.

To Be Long Probe.

It is also the judgment of Washington that the Daugherty investigation will be a long one, and that every additional day of the length of it will be unfortunate for Coolidge. It is assumed that since Coolidge seemed unwilling to go the whole length of the investigation, Daugherty, or before the investigation began, he will hardly do so now until it ends.

In some quarters, at least, it is felt that every additional day of a prolonged investigation of Daugherty still in office will tend to give rise to a feeling that Coolidge did not share the public emotion of emergency and urgency about the investigation of the department of justice, which was much depended on the able and energetic carrying out of the functions of that office.

WEIGHT STANDARDS

HIDDEN IN CAPITOL

of the state capital Wednesday. A negro porter in the office of secretary of state was moving around a supply of automobile license tags when he came across the box. Curiosity moved him to open it, with the result told above.

It is known these were in possession of the state in 1839, for the legislature of that year, in passing an act adopting the U. S. standard for the state weights and measures, included in the act instructions to the governor "to cause to be procured in some cheap and economical way, one hundred standards of each to correspond in weight and measure, with those now in the executive office in Milledgeville."

The standards evidently are the weights referred to, as being in the executive office at Milledgeville in 1839. They probably were boxed at Milledgeville when the capital was moved to Atlanta in 1847.

Georgia first established the standard of weights and measures under the act of December 10, 1803. That act provided that authorized weights and measures should correspond with, or be not less than the standards established by the corporations of Savannah and Augusta.

What is the safe interest rate?

The answer depends on the kind of investment you buy and on where the security is located. Any financial authority will tell you that there is no hard and fast rule regarding interest rates as an index of safety.

Miller First Mortgage Bonds, secured by income-earning properties in Southern cities, pay up to 7%, because that is the rate prevailing in the South on first mortgage security. The fact that no investor ever lost a dollar in Miller Bonds is good testimony that in the South 7% is safe.

MEXICAN BANDITS

RAID U. S. RANCH

$40,000 acres of land with large buildings and stock valued at more than $400,000. The entire ranch value is estimated at nearly $2,000,000.

Langtry, Texas, is one of the most picturesque towns on the international boundary. The Southern Pacific crosses the Pecos river on an immense trestle over 500 feet high and several hundred feet in length.

Langtry is famous in western history as the scene of Justice Roy Bean of early days, whose droll decisions are masterpieces of western history and whose ancient court house shack is in sight of the Southern Pacific, with the original sign on it reading "office of justice Roy Bean, jurisdiction all territory west of the Pecos to the Pacific."

TROOPS OFFERED FOR LANGTRY.

Washington, March 5.—If troops are needed to protect American lands and property in the vicinity of Langtry, Texas, where a raid by Mexican bandits has been reported, they will be dispatched on orders from the corps area commander at San Antonio, Texas, General Hines, acting chief of staff, according to a Wednesday night. Hines had received no report of the raid.

Because of the sparsely settled nature of the country around Langtry, war department officials believed the details now stationed nearby would be sufficient to deal with the situation if their services are needed to protect the ranch owners. A cavalry regiment is stationed about thirty miles away.

HOUSE TAX BILL

CREATES DEFICIT

first by the democratic income tax plan and later by the Longworth compromise schedule which was adopted with the support of the republicans as a unit.

Sentiment Not Crystallized.

The Longworth rates in the bill provide a maximum surtax of 37 1/2 percent on incomes above $200,000 while the Mellon rates carried a maximum surtax of 25 percent above $100,000. The opinion that, outside $100,000, the rates are too high.

Both Mr. Watson and Mr. Moses of committee, sentiment had not crystallized very distinctly on tax legislation in the senate. This belief was supported by statements of senate leaders of both parties.

A determined effort, however, is expected to be made by administration republicans to amend the house amendments to the bill providing for increases in the estate taxes, institution of a gift tax, and opening of income tax to certain congressional committees.

Another Fight in Prospect.

On the other hand some democrats have indicated they will not only seek to retain the amendments, but will come tax return inspection to make the returns virtually public records.

Although the attitude of republican insurgents, led by Senator La Follette, Wisconsin, has not been definitely indicated, the insurgent group in the house voted with the democrats on their income tax schedule until republicans raised the surtax limit to 37 1/2 percent and reduced the normal tax rates. A statement issued during the tax fight in the house, by Representative Nelson and Fear, Wisconsin, leaders of the insurgent group there, declared the "work of tax reform will be further carried out by progressives in the senate."

While democrats have not outlined any stand, some leaders have indicated they will support a plan similar to that advanced by their party in the house for a 44 percent maximum surtax rate above $102,000.

Senate Has Confirmed Appointment of Kansan To Justice Department

Washington, March 5.—The nomination of Ira K. Wells, of Kansas, to be an assistant attorney general was confirmed by the senate today. He will have charge of the public lands division of the justice department which will work with special government counsel in the oil cases.

Aviator Will Oppose Infantryman in Race For State Auditorship

Little Rock, Ark., March 5.—A test of supremacy between the "air forces" and the "land forces" in Arkansas politics is imminent. Last week Major J. Carroll Cone, a former army aviator and now a deputy in the secretary of state's office, announced his candidacy for the office of state auditor with the declaration that he would use in his campaign "a regular fighting airplane" his friends are planning to purchase for him.

Today James G. Tucker, state auditor, an infantry officer during the war, who is a candidate for re-nomina-

ARISTASTROOPS TAKE VACANT CITY

Washington, March 5.—Five hundred revolutionary followers of Juan Angel Aristas, liberal candidate for the presidency of Honduras, occupied the city of Tela shortly before noon today. The occupation was effected without fighting, opposition revolutionists supporting the Carias candidacy having evacuated Sunday.

The situation was described in the following message received by the state department from Vice Consul Wilkinson at Tela:

"Aristas numbering approximately 500 commanded by General Cisneros entered town 11:30 a. m. No fighting. Carias' troops having evacuated old Tela Sunday. Cisneros assures me he will respect American property."

BUSINESS MEN FLEE TO PUERTO CORTES.

New Orleans, March 5.—Business men of San Pedro Sula, Honduras, have fled from the city and taken refuge at Puerto Cortes, where American marines have been landed, according to a letter received in New Orleans today from Honduras. "The merchants, it was added, fled to the coast, when they found it impossible to meet demands for money from the de facto government. Fifty thousand dollars was demanded a week prior to the time the letter was written and the sum was raised by levying upon foreign owned establishments.

The writer, describing the fire last week at La Ceiba, one of the Honduran ports, said seven blocks of business buildings were burned. Most of the property was insured, but only a small amount will be recovered because of a special clause which released the insurance companies of responsibility for damage from revolution or its consequences. The fire followed heavy fighting in the streets of the town.

San Pedro Sula, at the time the letter was written, was held by troops of the Guiterres government, but the revolutionists were closing in on the city. The writer said the revolutionary lines extended from La Lima, a sugar mill owned by the Cuyamel Fruit company, to Rio Hondo, a port 15 miles away. He expressed the belief the government troops would be forced to surrender.

is more than a scandal. It is a symbol—a symbol of the American attitude toward the nation's resources. We have not only hunted our game, but we have slaughtered it. We have not only conquered the wilderness, but we have destroyed it. We have not only developed the country, but we have gutted it. We have not only populated the land, but we are trying to Chinafy it. What's the hurry? These questions are fully discussed on our editorial page and in "The Diary of a Dude Wrangler" by Struthers Burt.

LAST TALKS WITH WOODROW WILSON

By James Kerney

Bankrupt Banks, Credit and Wheat

Garet Garrett has been in the Northwest—where the farmers have had more credit than crops, more panaceas than rain—looking into conditions there and the legislation offered to help tide the farmer over his period of hard luck and low prices. Alonzo E. Taylor contributes "The Crux of the Wheat Problem", in which he analyzes the export situation.

During the last year of his life, Woodrow Wilson wrote to few men, talked things over with even fewer. Mr. Kerney was one of these men. He has reprinted some of the War President's letters, reported some of his conversations, for The Saturday Evening Post. In them Mr. Wilson expressed his belief that the world regarded him as the international leader of liberal thought and was swinging back to his views. He commented on the Senate in none too complimentary terms; on his own hope of returning to a position of political leadership. He held decided opinions about the men who leave high place in the government and, through the prestige thus gained, obtain high fees from corporations that have relations with the government.

Democratic versus Republican Taxation

Taxpayers favor all plans to reduce taxation, and the greater the reduction, the greater the favor. Mr. Garner believes that his plan does more for more people than Mr. Mellon's. He has made a detailed analysis of it for The Saturday Evening Post. Read "YOUR MONEY" by David Lawrence, an interview with Representative John N. Garner.

PARK HEADS FACE INJUNCTION SUIT

A special meeting of the parks committee of city council has been called for Thursday afternoon to consider the injunction brought against the committee in Fulton superior court by four unsuccessful bidders for concession privileges in municipal parks.

are M. L. Hamner, R. J. Spiller, W. L. Sexton and C. L. Chosewood. Concession privileges at Grant and Piedmont parks were held last year by Mr. Chosewood. The bids of L. O. Beall, who offered $2,500 annually for Grant park and $1,200 annually for Piedmont park, were accepted by the committee. The petition to Judge George L. Bell for an injunction charged that the committee had "fraudulently and arbitrarily agreed, before the bids were opened, to give concession privileges to L. O. Beall, and that this agreement was carried out, despite the fact that Mr. Beall's bid was the lowest in the group."

COLON POISONING DESTROYS HEALTH

Hastens Old Age and Premature Degeneration of All Vital Organs.

You are a wise man or woman if you understand your colon and keep it in perfect working order. Health, happiness, vigor and long life are the gifts which an active colon gives you—and a lazy colon takes away. Your colon is the last five feet of your digestive canal. It is your sewerage system; your garbage can, so to speak. Keep it clean and you are well and happy; let it stagnate and it will distill the poisons of decay, fermentation (gas) and putrefaction into your blood, poisoning your brain and nerves so that you are restless, irritable and blue; poisoning your heart so that you are weak, listless and lazy; poisoning your lungs so that your breath is heavy or foul; poisoning your stomach and digestive organs so that you are bloated, belching and uncomfortable with gas pains; poisoning your blood so that your skin looks yellow, sallow and unhealthy; poisoning every part and organ of your body, through your blood, making you look and feel old and ugly long before your time; making your joints and your back stiff and rheumatic; your eyes dull and your brain sluggish.

are made up of long, muscle fibres or muscle cells which, by their contraction, empty the colon just as you would squeeze a rubber hose pipe. These muscle fibres should contract three times a day—within an hour after each meal. If they do not contract, they have lost their tone—their power to contract.

But, there is a practically perfect remedy for lazy, flabby colons. This remedy quickly restores the tone, is absolutely harmless and decidedly pleasant to take. Clip this article and take it to your druggist. Tell him to give you a bottle of Colotone—the colon tonic. It will cost you one dollar if you are pleased with it, nothing if you are not pleased with it, for every druggist has been instructed to refund the price and ask no questions if his customer is not thoroughly satisfied.

But you will be delighted with Colotone for it will make you feel like a different person. Your eyes will sparkle with vitality and alertness; your brain will be clear and active; your complexion will be fresh and transparent, reflecting the purity of your blood; your digestion will be thorough and your appetite keen, for your food will taste delicious and you will agree with your food and sleep and awake refreshed; your system will be full of vim and vigor; you will feel younger, stronger, vigorous—you will enjoy the pleasure of living.

Get started on Colotone today. Nearly every one of the five or six or thirty years of age, and many younger, need Colotone more or less. You will be simply delighted with it. Colotone cannot possibly do you any harm—it can only do you good. Try it on your guarantee. It will help you live long, well and happily.—(Ad.)

members of the park committee who voted to award the contracts to Councilman J. A. Beall's son, issued a statement Wednesday denying the charges in the injunction. He said that J. A. Beall, another member of the committee, concurred with him in the statement.

Facts to Be Given. Mr. Saunders said, "In the charges as set out in the injunction, the awards were fairly made. The bids of Mr. Beall and Mr. Chosewood called for $2,500 per year for Grant park. Mr. Chosewood did not bid on Piedmont park. A majority of the committee saw fit to accept the bid of Mr. Beall, which we had a perfect right to do. When the injunction is heard the people will be given all the facts, and it is a question as to who shall control the parks, the board or the politician."

"Alderman Kassek's daughter, Councilman Kassek's son, Councilman Beall's son and the daughter of Councilman Chosewood, all had bids before the committee as did many others," Mr. Saunders pointed out. "We might call attention to the fact that Mr. Chosewood held this concession while he was alderman and councilman of the city of Atlanta."

"There was no favoritism shown, all bids being opened by the chairman and the committee voted on every bid presented. We expect to obey the court order and answer summons March 22, 1924," he concluded.

Wells Protested. Councilman J. L. Wells, chairman of the parks committee, when informed that the committee had been enjoined from carrying out concession contracts, recalled that he had been tested the committee's action on the floor of city council Monday afternoon.

"The higher bids were from competent people," he said, "and I believed them capable of administering the privileges sought."

ROTARY OFFICERS ARE NOMINATED AT TUESDAY MEET

J. P. Allen was nominated for president of the Rotary club at a meeting Tuesday at the Capital City club, and with other nominees, will be voted on at the next meeting. The names of 10 members were submitted for the board of directors, five of whom are to be elected at the next meeting.

The program Tuesday was almost entirely in charge of pupils of the four junior high schools of Atlanta, who under direction of Willis A. Sutton, superintendent, demonstrated many activities of Atlanta's public schools. Expositions of scholarship were made by pupils of the Joseph E. Brown school; athletics by Daniel C. O'Keefe students; shops, by pupils of William L. Byrd school, and the dramatic guidance by the Holm Smith school.

Canned foods for the luncheon were donated by the Libby company in connection with "Canned Food Week." Music was furnished by orchestra from the O'Keefe and Brown schools.

UNDERWOOD CHIEF ATTACKS NEW RULE

R. C. Gordon, manager of the Oscar Underwood campaign headquarters in the Kimball House, gave out a statement Wednesday in which he bitterly scores the action of the subcommittee on rules of the state democratic executive committee, in permitting counties to hold primary elections at the courthouse, if they so desired, in the presidential preference primaries on March 19.

Mr. Gordon also attacked a statement made by Miller S. Bell, headquarters manager for the McAdoo campaign, Tuesday, branding it as "absolutely false." The Bell statement, according to Mr. Gordon, charged that Senator Underwood was an opponent of prohibition, woman suffrage, summer and fall months, and that he was in favor of the Ford plan to develop Muscle Shoals. "The action of the subcommittee of the democratic state executive committee Tuesday in voting that counties may hold presidential preference primaries on March 19, was high-handed and unjust," Mr. Gordon said. "The action was taken because the committee was packed against Mr. Underwood and the common people, in favor of Mr. McAdoo and the politicians."

Charges Unfairness. "Mr. Elders, representing Senator Underwood, insisted that the county committees be required to open the voting places in at least half the precincts or the primary be declared null and void. The subcommittee voted down this plan because the McAdoo crowd did not want to give the people of Georgia a chance to express themselves. They know very well that the farmers and the plain people of Georgia are overwhelmingly in favor of Mr. McAdoo. It is unfair, unjust, and undemocratic to let a few county rings in the various counties open one voting place in the courthouse, east a few hall-boys for themselves and their deputies, and call that an expression of the will of the people."

"Senator Underwood voted against the prohibition amendment in congress on the theory that it was a violation of the state right for which the south has always stood, but he is a supporter of prohibition, and an opponent of even the light wine and beer program," Mr. Gordon continued. "He is recognized as one of the leaders in the movement to develop Muscle Shoals for the benefit of the south."

"Senator Underwood is the only candidate before the Georgia voters who has a chance to receive the democratic nomination for president. Everybody, everywhere, with the exception of a few Georgia politicians, admit that the relations of Mr. McAdoo with the oil interests have eliminated him. 'Capot Dome' is to be the slogan of the democratic party in the next campaign, and the steam has never touched Underwood."

Primary Plans. In response to letters sent to chairman of all county democratic executive committees, 93 have replied, giving the status of their plans in the presidential preference primary to be held on March 19. Of the 93 replies, 65 stated that they would hold the presidential primary on March 19, in connection with their county primaries. Fifteen will hold the presidential primary alone on that date, while twelve declared they will not hold the presidential primary on that date, not stating, however, whether it would be held in their counties on some other date.

One county, Gilmer, declared that no primary would be held on the presidential question at all.

Southern Railway Seeks Authority To Increase Tracks

A petition has been presented to the Georgia public service commission by a group of Atlanta brick manufacturers and contractors, asking that the Southern railway be required to increase its track facilities at North Boulevard and Tenth street. Hearing on the petition is set for March 11 and a lively debate is anticipated. It is claimed by petitioners that manufacturers who furnish brick and other construction work now in progress on the north side, are compelled to haul these materials from Marietta street and North avenue, whereas such materials could be carried close to the place of construction by the railroad, simply by enlarging unloading facilities on North Boulevard.

Construction Work Not Seasonal Job Hoover Is Told

Washington, March 5.—Home owners and builders throughout the United States, as well as investors and bankers interested in the construction of industry, can help avert employment crises by ceasing to consider construction work as seasonal industry to be undertaken solely during spring, summer and fall months.

This conclusion was put before Secretary Hoover, of the commerce department, today by a special committee which has worked over the subject of interstate commerce since the unemployment conference of 1921.

Summing up their findings the committee said that winter construction work properly planned and executed is as effective as summer work and should offer opportunities for financial savings and gains to the persons putting up building capital.

STATE OFFICIALS WILL DISTRIBUTE WEEVIL POISON

The state board of entomology has arranged with the Atlantic Coast Line, Seaboard Air Line and the Central of Georgia railroads to operate a "peddler car" of calcium arsenate through the Georgia cotton belt, it is announced.

Thus far, arrangements have been made to cover all roads south of Macon. The car will be sidetracked one day at each station and cotton growers may buy the poison at the car in any amount from 100 pounds up, it is stated.

Information as to the best method of controlling the boll weevil, together with instructions for using calcium arsenate, will be given at the car, members of the board said. It was explained that cotton planters who have already placed orders with the board of entomology can obtain the poison at the car if they so desire.

Otherwise, it will be shipped at a cost of $25 or more for a permanent wave which lasts only a few months? Or why pay $1.00 or more a week to have your hair curled or waved? This expense is no longer necessary—for now, in your own home, you can give your hair what we consider a far more beautiful permanent wave—and you can do it in just 15 minutes—and at a cost of just a few cents a week!

This is through a wonderful new liquid discovery, called Domino Curlette. You simply moisten your hair with a few drops of this marvelous liquid, use your favorite curlers, and in just 15 minutes you have a wealth of soft, lustrous curls, and wonderfully natural waves—curls and waves which stay in place from 7 to 10 days, often longer!

Just think what this means! No more straight, dull, unattractive hair! No more big fees to hair dressers! No more fuss and bother of curling your own hair several times a week! For just one application of Domino Curlette each week will keep your hair permanently wavy and curls, with each curl and wave exactly in place, just as dainty and charming as can be. Domino Curlette is now used by over one million women. Money back if not delighted. Sold by all good stores, such as:

Jacobs' Pharmacy Co., E. H. Cone, Inc., Franklin & Cox, Inc., Chamberlin-Johnson-Dulose Co., Parker-Diamond Drug Co., M. H. Rich & Bros., Chas. A. Smith Drug Co. and Laggett's Stores.

LOWER RAIL RATES FOR U. S. SHIP USERS

New York, March 5.—The shipping board has taken a long step toward building up a permanent merchant marine by its certification to the interstate commerce commission that sufficient tonnage exists to warrant the placing in effect of section 28 of the merchant marine act, E. C. Plummer, vice chairman of the board, declared in an address today before the Propeller club of the port of New York.

Mr. Plummer explained that the board's action was taken in accordance with a mandatory provision of the act and was not an "aggressive move" on its part. He disputed claims that American tonnage was inadequate and that application of the preferential rate clause would disrupt the railroad rate structure, asserting they were made in "ignorance" of the facts.

May Exercise Preference. There is nothing in the law, he said, forbidding "any or all of the exports and imports of this country traveling in foreign ships."

"If an exporter prefers to use a foreign ship, that is his right," he said, "and the release of this law is that if his through shipments are handled by American vessels, he gets a lower railroad rate for such goods, when they are being brought from the interior to the seaboard or are being carried from the seaboard to interior points, than he can get if he patronizes foreign ships."

Some United States ports already have export and import rates, said Mr. Plummer, and all that is necessary to put all ports of the country on a basis of equality under Section 28 is "merely to establish similar rates" at those where they are not in effect.

"This rate," he continued, "might be arrived at by merely providing for, say, a 10 per cent reduction from domestic rates. That simple change certainly would not affect the general rate structure, but it would give a financial reason for patronizing American vessels in our foreign trade."

Cause of Delay. Section 28 would have gone into effect more than three years ago, he said, if the board had not caused its suspension due to the deficiency in American tonnage. With the completion of the world war and establishment of efficient ocean services under the American flag, he added, that condition disappeared, but the board maintained the suspension "to give our competitors every opportunity to adjust themselves."

Women Need Swamp-Root

Thousands of women have kidney and bladder trouble and never suspect it. Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease. If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition, they may cause the other organs to become diseased. Pain in the back, headache, loss of ambition, nervousness, are often times symptoms of kidney trouble. Don't delay starting treatment. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a physician's prescription, obtained at any drug store, may be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions. Get a medium or large size bottle immediately from any drug store. However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—(adv.)

Flag-Raising Ceremonies Atop Building

Scenes of flag-raising ceremonies Wednesday morning on top of the new building soon to be occupied by M. Rich & Brothers' company. Little Marie Strauss, shown in insert, raised the flag while scores of Rich employees and patrons of the big store looked on.

A large American flag was hoisted Wednesday morning to the top of the new M. Rich & Brothers' store, corner of Alabama and Broad streets. Flag-raising ceremonies were attended by several employees and patrons of the Rich store, who saw the chubby fingers of three-year-old Marie Strauss tightly grip the ropes as the fluttering emblem was lifted to its lofty perch. As little Marie Strauss, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Strauss, raised the flag, the group of employees and patrons joined in singing "The Star Spangled Banner."

Practically all employees joined in the exercises which were held despite the drizzling rain which started almost simultaneously with the ceremonies. Ten girls, all employees of the store, unfurled the flag just before it was drawn upward on the pole. The exercises were under direction of Lucian York, general manager of the big Rich store.

Little Marie Strauss, standing on a box and supported by her mother, was really the center figure of the entire exercises. Not nearly as tall as the flag is wide, she was forced to tug with both hands until the flag reached the top of the tall pole.

Mrs. Sarah Gardner, who five years ago was retired on a pension after 32 years service in the employ of Rich Brothers, was an interested spectator. The building will soon be ready for occupancy and arrangements are now being made for removal of stock into the new store.

Special prices on practically all articles of merchandise in the present Rich store, on Whitehall street, have been in effect for several days in an effort to reduce the stock before removal to the big new building.

The estimate should be increased at least $200 per year." In response to a question from Mr. McMorro, Mr. McBrayer stated that he earned a little over $1,500.00 in 1923. Mr. McMorro then presented an exhibit, showing wages paid in other classes of employment in Atlanta. In response to a question, Mr. McBrayer stated that he recently visited various cities in the west and middle west and that in most of the cities he visited the wages paid street railway trainmen are better than those they receive in Atlanta.

Income Insufficient. Mr. McBrayer was followed on the stand by N. L. Skelton, member of the street car men's union, who expressed the opinion that Mr. McBrayer's estimate of the cost of living in Atlanta was not correct. He stated that the wages paid the street railway trainmen are insufficient to support himself and family.

H. E. James, car inspector, submitted figures to show the average number of dependents upon the members of the union who are married is five, including the head of the family.

Following Mr. James' testimony the hearing was adjourned until 2:30 o'clock this morning.

Athens, Ga., March 5.—(Special.) Athens' plan for inducing new industries to locate here was advanced further this week when city council and the board of county commissioners agreed to appropriate $2,500 jointly for a survey of industries.

ATLANTA ELKS ELECT NEW OFFICERS TODAY

Annual election of officers of Atlanta Lodge of Elks will be held Thursday at the Elks' home, 40 East Ellis street, according to announcement made Wednesday by R. C. Broyles, secretary.

For the first time in the history of the Atlanta lodge, the large membership has necessitated installation of ballot boxes and the polls will be kept open from 11 o'clock in the morning until 9 o'clock at night in order that 4,500 members may have opportunity to indicate a choice for each office.

In the past officers have been elected by members present in the lodge room on election night, but because of the limited seating capacity of the room, which will accommodate but 450, it was decided to install ballot boxes, to be kept open ten hours during the day.

Judge L. F. McClelland has no opposition for the office of exalted ruler and will enter on his third successive term in that office, something without precedent in annals of the local lodge. Judge McClelland was recently highly recommended for his work in behalf of the Atlanta lodge, by Arthur Flatau, of Athens, district deputy grand exalted ruler of Georgia, following an inspection made here by Flatau, as the personal representative of Grand Exalted Ruler James U. McFarland.

List of Candidates.

The list of candidates to be voted on follows: Judge L. F. McClelland, candidate for reelection as exalted ruler; J. Wayne Allen, candidate for reelection as secretary; Carl M. Lancaster and Frank Baumgartner, candidates for loyal knight; P. L. Provano, candidate for lecturing knight; R. C. Broyles and E. L. Coolidge, candidates for secretary; R. B. Cunningham and Roger Wickham, candidates for treasurer; W. B. Cummings, candidate for Tyler; J. Turner Fitch, Walter P. Andrews, and Arthur I. May, candidates for trustees; Judge L. F. McClelland for grand lodge representative, and Theo. Matt, for alternate grand lodge representative.

B. C. Broyles, if reelected secretary, will, with Judge McClelland, enter his third successive term. E. L. Coolidge, the other candidate for secretary, was defeated by Broyles at the last election.

DEFENSE TAKES STAND

In 21 Dipping Cases

On Trial in Echols

Valdosta, Ga., March 5.—(Special.) After introducing much documentary evidence, government prosecutors rested the case in the Echols county 21 cattle dipping conspiracy cases here today. Testimony for the defense was immediately taken up, and during the remainder of the day twelve witnesses were introduced. Many of the witnesses, representative citizens of Echols and adjoining counties, included Jesse Peterson, George S. Roberts, Joe Fry, Joe Bass, Dr. J. P. Prescott, of Lake Park, and A. G. Garbutt, of this city.

Attorneys for the defense attempted to discredit much of the government testimony. Several witnesses testified that certain government witnesses were of disreputable character, and that they would not believe them on oath.

Dr. Prescott and Roder Carter, alleged to have attempted to blow up the prime dipping vat, offered alibis. Mrs. J. T. McNeil, who runs a boarding house, stated that when government inspectors and Dr. Horne applied to her for her house they were not accommodated. She stated that Dr. Horne offered to furnish a guard, but she did not want her home guarded. She denied that Dr. Prescott told her that her house was liable to be dynamited, as had been stated by prosecution witnesses.

Attorneys for defendants stated that all of tomorrow would be consumed in introducing additional evidence.

William Harrison, who recently came to the river Plate, in South America, has been told by the English channel this summer. It will be remembered that Tiraboschi, the Argentine summer, was the last successful summer on the channel, and that he was the last time. Miss Harrison's distance across the Plate was 24 1/2 miles in a direct line, and she contends that the channel currents are a much greater obstacle to those she encountered in the Plate. One can hardly help feeling that she will find an error in her calculation. But certainly in the last few years, the currents are not so much more nearly to the records of the past than in almost any other line.

It was a snappy session with Manager McKeehin hitting the ball to Grimm, Maranville, Wright and Traynor while the regulars gathered along the base lines to watch the performance. Manager McKeehin discarded the slow and easy order and for fifteen minutes the infield foursome performed in a season form.

W. L. needs rest, not work," said the father-manager of the fighter. "I shall allow him ten days of rest, and then will put on his 'hard work' work here, followed by another week in the gymnasium at Madison Square Garden New York, and we will be ready for the fight."

"During the last three months W. L. has done no road work for all the bouts in which he has figured. But he will do road work in his training for the fight with Mike McTigue, and he'll be in shape to step and hit for twelve rounds as he has never done before."

The fact that eight ounce gloves will be used in the New Jersey fight lessens the chance for a knockout, according to some members of the Striding party. But the Striding insisted that the young man given out as a reply to rumors that the faculty of arts and sciences at a meeting yesterday, discussed college athletics, was as follows:

"There is feeling at Harvard that too much attention is being paid to intercollegiate athletic contests and that the schedules of athletic teams are excessive."

"Some modifications are contemplated, but as yet no final action has been taken by the committee on the regulation of athletic sports at Harvard."

The secretary and other university officials refused to amplify this statement.

"I would be able, he feels sure, to deliver a knockout punch."

The Striding party may leave here on Saturday night for Miami, Fla., where they are to begin training eight days later.

Moran has been confined to his room at an Orlando hotel where he is being closely advanced guard since Sunday.

full cash payments or insurance policies. The four-option McKenzie bill, similar to that voted by President Harding, providing for cash payments to those not entitled to more than $50; adjusted service certificates, a form of deferred payment; vocational training; and farm or home aid.

Others Show Up. Other propositions also were advanced, including one of Representative Hayden, democrat, Arizona, to include in the McKenzie measure a fifth option providing for land settlements. The first four, however, gained most support.

The members of the committee frankly stated tonight that no definite plans had been agreed upon so far as party lines in the McKenzie measure. A fifth option providing for land settlements. The first four, however, gained most support.

tion of a bonus plan immediately endorsing the bill passed last session, similar to that introduced by Representative McKenzie, republican, Illinois. Pressed by committee members as to his views on the other proposals, Mr. Quinn said he could only present the legion's endorsement of the old bill. He added, however, that it so happened the legion's and his views coincided.

Representative Hawes, democrat, Missouri, who voted against the bonus bill last session, was among the supporters of a straight-out cash payment plan. Other advocates of this proposal were Representatives Beggs, republican, Ohio, and Lea, democrat, California.

Urges Insurance Plan. Representative Andrew, republican, Massachusetts, presented again his scheme for paid-up insurance policies, declaring he believed 95 per cent of the former service men would be satisfied by such a bonus. He added that if all officers were excluded as provided in his bill, the bonus would cost about $200,000,000 less. Representative Buchanan, New Jersey, a republican member of the ways and means committee, also advocated such a scheme.

Although some opposition was voiced to the granting of any bonus whatever, committee members centered their questioning of spokesmen on the form which such legislation should take.

WIGHT ELECTED LOCAL CHAIRMAN OF EMORY ALUMNI

DESERTERS REGAIN CITIZEN RIGHTS

Washington, March 5.—President Coolidge by proclamation today restored the rights of American citizenship to all deserters from the army and navy during the three-year period between the armistice and the formal ending of the World War.

The proclamation issued upon the recommendation of Secretaries Denby and Weeks, affects in no wise those who deserted in the face of the enemy or at any time before the armistice, but does not result of course in court-martial sentences of those who deserted after the armistice and prior to the technical ending of the war.

The president's action clears up a situation whereby under the law those who deserted after the fighting ceased suffered the same loss of citizenship as those who left the military forces during the war's prosecution.

Believes Penalty Harsh. The war was actually over on November 11, 1918, but all who deserted after that date and before the last proclamation of peace November 17, 1921, were deemed under the law to have forfeited their citizenship, as well as their rights to become citizens, and to be forever incapable of holding any office of trust or profit under the United States or of exercising any of the rights of American citizenship.

Secretary Denby in a letter to the president, made public at the navy department coincident with issuance of the proclamation, said that he had declared the citizenship penalties "however justifiable in cases of desertion committed during the prosecution of the war, are now unworkable and severe for offenses committed at any other time."

Many More Boys. "With more boys, as many of them were when they deserted, a full comprehension of the statutory disabilities which confronted them was not possible," Mr. Denby said. "It is during the years which have elapsed, and which they may yet have to live, as they grow to manhood and old age, that they realize the terrible consequences of their offense and the shame which it involves and which, unless relieved, they must carry with them to the grave, to the everlasting dishonor of themselves and their posterity. They are forever marked, not living in a country without any of the benefits of citizenship and forever deprived of obtaining such benefits."

Agree To One Amendment. Proprietors of the McKenzie bill agreed today to accept an amendment specifying that the heirs and assigns of Mr. Ford should be obligated to 100 years to carry out provisions of the contract.

Among those who urged acceptance of Ford's offer today were Representatives James, republican, Michigan; Fisher, Tennessee; Gieran, New Jersey; Hill, Alabama; McSwain, South Carolina; and Wright, Georgia, democrats, all members of the military committee which reported the McKenzie bill.

The attack on the offer of the Detroit manufacturer was led by Representative Burton, republican, Ohio, chairman of the rules committee, and Representative Simmons, republican, Nebraska. Announcement was made that Chairman Madden of the appropriations committee would conclude the argument tomorrow in behalf of the McKenzie proposal.

At the outset of today's session the war was a sharp fight as to whether the McKenzie bill should replace business ordinarily in order or Wednesday. Chairman Graham of the judiciary committee urged that further debate on the Ford offer go on for a day, but Representative Longworth, the republican leader, offered a motion to give the McKenzie proposal the right of way and it was adopted by an overwhelming vote.

A handful of members were on the floor when the house went into session but a roll call at a point of order, showed that a quorum was not present, brought members trailing into the chamber. As debate wore on the attendance kept shrinking.

Shortly after 4 o'clock Mr. McKenzie announced he had only one speaker in behalf of the bill and that he was anxious to have this member, Mr. Madden, wind up the discussion tomorrow. Representative Quinn, democrat, Mississippi, in charge of the allotment of half of the time of proponents of the Ford offer, declared he had "no orators" on hand but would have several on the firing line tomorrow.

Debate Postponed. For a moment it looked as if debate was at an end and no one desired to speak in opposition, although several planned to do so tomorrow, when Representative Mapes, republican, Michigan, presiding, seemed inclined to have reading of the bill under the five minute rule begin.

Mr. McKenzie took the situation out of the fire by proposing an agreement that debate go over until tomorrow's session. The time remaining for general discussion will be divided equally between proponents and opponents of his bill.

As a vote on various amendments, several leaders on both sides of the bill declared they were in the dark as to how the house would line up on various changes that will be proposed in the bill. Both sides appear confident, but admitted no accurate poll had been taken to determine the attitude of the house members.

In addition to the military committee members who spoke in favor of the bill, Representative Longworth, the republican leader, offered a motion to give the McKenzie proposal the right of way and it was adopted by an overwhelming vote.

A handful of members were on the floor when the house went into session but a roll call at a point of order, showed that a quorum was not present, brought members trailing into the chamber. As debate wore on the attendance kept shrinking.

Shortly after 4 o'clock Mr. McKenzie announced he had only one speaker in behalf of the bill and that he was anxious to have this member, Mr. Madden, wind up the discussion tomorrow. Representative Quinn, democrat, Mississippi, in charge of the allotment of half of the time of proponents of the Ford offer, declared he had "no orators" on hand but would have several on the firing line tomorrow.

Debate Postponed. For a moment it looked as if debate was at an end and no one desired to speak in opposition, although several planned to do so tomorrow, when Representative Mapes, republican, Michigan, presiding, seemed inclined to have reading of the bill under the five minute rule begin.

Mr. McKenzie took the situation out of the fire by proposing an agreement that debate go over until tomorrow's session. The time remaining for general discussion will be divided equally between proponents and opponents of his bill.

COLLEGE UPHELD FOR DISCHARGING GIRL FOR SMOKING

Lansing, Mich., March 5.—Officials of the Michigan State Normal School at Ypsilanti, who expelled Miss Alice Stanton for alleged smoking cigarettes, in the spring of 1922, were upheld by the state supreme court in a decision handed down late today. Miss Stanton is now working as a stenographer in Detroit.

Miss Stanton was refused permission to return to the school because of cited smoking, and took her case to the courts in an effort to compel the authorities to admit her. The supreme court not only refused to order her return to school, but commended Ypsilanti officials for maintaining certain ideals for the young women who will be the teachers of the state, and declared that instead of condemning Mrs. Stanton for smoking, she should be commended for upholding some of the old-fashioned ideals of young womanhood.

Mrs. Stanton came before the public eye ten days ago at the University of Missouri, where she now is, when she caused the dismissal of eleven students, four of them girls, on charges of drinking liquor.

SOLONS WALK OUT ON SHOALS DEBATE

Washington, March 5.—The house took itself out today on Muscle Shoals, but adjourned determined to resume discussion of Henry Ford's offer.

For nearly four hours debate which began yesterday on the McKenzie bill providing for acceptance of the Ford offer, was terminated today when no one appeared willing to continue the discussion. Only 50 members were on the floor when the day's session ended.

The floor debate on the bill, limited to 10 hours, will be completed tomorrow, clearing the way for the offering of amendments. Representatives Hull, republican, Iowa, leading the fight against the measure said that at least a dozen amendments, which would materially alter the terms of the proposed contract, would be offered.

Agree To One Amendment. Proprietors of the McKenzie bill agreed today to accept an amendment specifying that the heirs and assigns of Mr. Ford should be obligated to 100 years to carry out provisions of the contract.

Among those who urged acceptance of Ford's offer today were Representatives James, republican, Michigan; Fisher, Tennessee; Gieran, New Jersey; Hill, Alabama; McSwain, South Carolina; and Wright, Georgia, democrats, all members of the military committee which reported the McKenzie bill.

The attack on the offer of the Detroit manufacturer was led by Representative Burton, republican, Ohio, chairman of the rules committee, and Representative Simmons, republican, Nebraska. Announcement was made that Chairman Madden of the appropriations committee would conclude the argument tomorrow in behalf of the McKenzie proposal.

At the outset of today's session the war was a sharp fight as to whether the McKenzie bill should replace business ordinarily in order or Wednesday. Chairman Graham of the judiciary committee urged that further debate on the Ford offer go on for a day, but Representative Longworth, the republican leader, offered a motion to give the McKenzie proposal the right of way and it was adopted by an overwhelming vote.

THEUNIS AGREES TO FORM CABINET

Brussels, March 5.—George Theunis, who resigned as premier February 27, accepted King Albert's request that he attempt to form a new cabinet.

The Theunis cabinet resigned after the Belgian chamber rejected its motion for ratification of the Franco-Belgian economic convention. The opposition had declared that the convention favored France, and the fall of the Theunis cabinet created anxiety in French circles as to whether a new regime would continue to support French policies in regard to reparations.

It has been indicated that the commission's findings warranted such an increase, but Chairman Marvin and other members of the commission declined to discuss any phase of the report.

Submission of the report had been held up for two weeks by a row in the commission as to the day's session. The president had urged several times that action be expedited.

INCREASE IN DUTIES ON WHEAT EXPECTED

Washington, March 5.—The tariff commission today delivered to President Coolidge a report on its wheat inquiry, and the president is expected soon to proclaim an increase in the present duties on wheat and wheat products.

It has been indicated that the commission's findings warranted such an increase, but Chairman Marvin and other members of the commission declined to discuss any phase of the report.

BACHMAN CHALLENGES SHIELDS TO DEBATE

Carthage, Tenn., March 5.—Judge Nathan L. Bachman, candidate for the democratic nomination for United States senator in opposition to Senator John K. Shields, tonight wired Senator Shields to a joint debate in Tennessee regarding the senator's record in the light of the platform of the democratic party.

CANDIDATES SPEAK AT FIFTH WARD MEET

Addresses by candidates for county offices featured the meeting of the Fifth Ward Improvement club Wednesday night in the State Street school. President Virgil Echols presided at the meeting.

George Matheson, candidate for tax collector, and Claude Ashley, candidate for county commissioner, were among the speakers.

NEW GUARD UNITS ARE MUSTERED

Six companies of Atlanta's new national guard regiment, the 200th infantry, were mustered into service Wednesday night. Mustering in ceremonies were held in the auditorium with Colonel J. M. Kimbrough, Jr., and Captain R. B. Ennis, of the regular army, in charge.

The inspecting officers stated following mustering in of the units that they had never seen a more promising group of embryo soldiers than presented themselves for service Wednesday night.

As companies were lined up and respective commanders called the roll each man answered to his name and stepped to the front—one pace. Most of them answered with the ring and snap of a regular parade spirit. When those who had worn the uniform before stepped to the front, the proportion was astonishing.

The second battalion, regiment headquarters, the service company and other units will be mustered in Friday night, completing Atlanta's portion of the regiment.

Men Are Needed. Young men who would like to be found charter members of this latest formation, may do so by applying to Lieutenant McKibben who can be reached through the Chamber of Commerce, or to any officers of the regiment. There are still vacancies in some of the units.

The officer personnel of the unit mustered in was given out Wednesday night. Charles H. Cox, adjutant general of the state, will be colonel having consented to accept the commission upon the insistence of officers. Eugene Gherdoffer, Jr., will be lieutenant colonel of the regiment.

First battalion headquarters officers are Major Charles E. Thompson, Second Lieutenant C. M. Westbrook, Second Lieutenant Jones Ewing, Company "A" officers are Captain Thomas L. Alexander, First Lieutenant Harry A. Heins, Second Lieutenant George T. Curry, Second Lieutenant Butler.

Company "B" officers are Captain Roy LeCraw, First Lieutenant David "Dumpty" of football fame, Second Lieutenant C. B. Howard.

Company "C" officers are Captain Thomas L. Alexander, First Lieutenant Harry A. Heins, Second Lieutenant George T. Curry, Second Lieutenant Butler.

Company "D" officers are Captain W. T. Comer, Jr., First Lieutenant Frank Maloney and Second Lieutenant Arthur LeCraw.

Company "E" Captain Gilchrist, Lieutenant Ed Greene and Second Lieutenant Fleming.

Unusual Example Set. It was announced Wednesday that the Exposition Cotton Mills had arranged to select a number of men from each department of their plant and request these men to enlist in the new regiment. About 25 men will be selected for their high standard of physique, character and service in the plant, both as regards promotion and retention at times when business conditions might necessitate reductions in the force.

This is the first time, so far as is known, that an employer of large numbers of workers, has done such a thing and it is believed that the example will be followed by other mills, not only by Atlanta employers, but in all parts of the country.

Appetite Gone?

A tempting, delicious looking human dynamo. Your blood cells supply the energy which keeps your body well and fit. Weakened blood cells make you like the picture on the left—lacking energy, power, and vitality.

These good things falling to put a keen edge on your appetites—falling to arouse in you a hearty relish for the food so attractively placed before you. Why?

Scores of men and women are faced with the same misfortune. After a day of toil—when they are tired—when good things to eat should be ravishingly sweet to them—they find it hard to eat. They are worn down, played out. Food has no appeal. To them it is sickening. The aroma of appetizing things nauseates them.

Red blood cells are missing. Red blood which should be coursing through your veins, strengthening your vitality—adding to your strength—keeping you healthy and fit—is not to be found.

Interesting Event in Americus

Of widespread interest throughout the state was the marriage on Wednesday afternoon, March 5, at 4 o'clock, of Miss Lois McMath and Evan Thomas Mathis, Jr., of Americus, which was solemnized at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lee McMath.

The wedding was to have been a brilliant social affair, but because of the recent death of the bride's grandmother, Mrs. W. B. Hays, all plans were changed and only the immediate members of the two families were present.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. John M. Outler, pastor of the First Methodist church, of Americus, and a charming program of nuptial music was rendered during the afternoon.

Musical Program.
Mrs. Julian Hightower, of Thomas, sang a group of numbers. Mrs. Stephen Pace, accompanied by Mrs. Joe Bryan at the piano, played two violin numbers. Mendelssohn's wedding march was played by Mrs. Bryan and Mrs. Pace and was the signal for the entrance of the bridal party.

The beautiful home was decorated with narcissi, roses and other early spring flowers placed in effective arrangement throughout the rooms. The altar was erected in the drawing room of stately pines, ferns and southern smilax, while on either side were candelabra, in which white tapers burned. The bride entered with her father, Robert Lee McMath, who gave her in marriage, and was joined at the altar by the groom and his best man, Arthur Rylander, Jr.

Lovely Costume.
She was lovely in a fashionable costume of Madonna blue accordion crepe trimmed with Chantilly lace of a deep green shade. Her picture hat was of tulle braid and lace, with a Dresden design of pastel flowers. Her corsage bouquet was of bride's roses and lilies of the valley.

Mr. and Mrs. Mathis departed during the afternoon for a motor trip to points in Florida, and upon their return will make their home in Americus. The bride traveled in a navy satin crepe gown with trimmings of coffee brown. Her small blue hat was trimmed with burnt goose.

Mrs. Mathis is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lee McMath, of Americus, and she inherits many social graces as well as a keen intellect from a long line of distinguished southern ancestry. She attended school at Wesleyan college, in Macon, later going to Brenau college, where she was a popular member of the Nu sorority.

During last year she studied in New York and other cities of the east, her attention being given mostly to social and economic problems. Later she was associated in an executive capacity with the Elizabeth Peabody settlement house in Boston, Mass. Since finishing school, she has been an admired figure in the social life of Americus and other cities where she has visited.

Mr. Mathis is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Evan T. Mathis. He received his education at Georgia Tech, graduating as a mechanical engineer with the class of 1917. He was a member of the Sigma Nu fraternity and Phi Kappa Phi honorary society.

Mr. Mathis joined the first officers' training camp at Fort McPherson during the World war, receiving his commission as first lieutenant in the ordnance corps. Later he served overseas with the first aviation corps until the signing of the armistice. He is at present associated with the Americus Automobile company and is president of the Americus Kiwanis club.

AFRAID SHE COULD NOT LIVE

Operation Advised, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Made It Unnecessary

Glasgow, Kentucky.—"I was run down, nervous, with no appetite. My side had given me trouble for five or six years. At times it was all I could do to live, and the doctor said I couldn't live but a short time longer with out an operation. That was two years ago. My sister-in-law recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. She had never used it herself, but she said one of her neighbors suffered just like I did, and it cured her. After I had taken four bottles the pain left my side. I had a fine appetite to eat anything that was put before me, and I began to do all my work and my washing, something I hadn't done for years. I am a dress maker, and this last fall I began suffering with my side again, so I began taking the Vegetable Compound again. I am on my fourth bottle, which makes eight in all I have taken. I feel so much better when I take it and every body tells me I look better. My appetite improves and I feel a lot better every way. I am a very nervous woman and it seems to help my nerves so much."—Mrs. MAGGIE WALLER, Glasgow, Kentucky.

How Would You Like
To Own
A Million Cows?

THIS question probably makes you realize what it means to own and take care of one million cows. And when you know that the 70,000 farmers who serve you with DAIRYLEA Brand Evaporated Milk own that number, you can also realize the immensity of the Dairymen's League Co-operative Association.

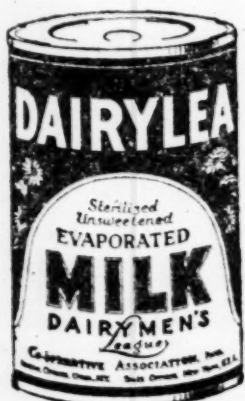

But more amazing is the fact that this great farmer-owned business rose out of a mere wish—your wish that you could get all your foods direct from the farm.

THUS it happens that when you buy DAIRYLEA Evaporated Milk you are buying the most important food that could come from the farm—and from the farmer himself.

This is why you find DAIRYLEA of such real farm quality and purity—richer and creamier—with more nutritious milk fats and solids. Yet because these farmers produce and sell DAIRYLEA themselves it costs no more than ordinary evaporated milk.

DAIRYLEA is the concentrated wholesomeness of the purest fresh bottled milk—exactly the same milk which U. S. Senator Copeland called "the best in the world." It is merely less bulky than fresh bottled milk, with a lessened water content. Nothing whatever is added.

Just say "DAIRYLEA" to your Grocer and you will get this rich, delicious milk—

Plan Library To Honor Mme. Slifer.

A French library in memory of Madame Slifer was proposed at the last meeting of the French Alliance, and a committee with Mrs. Marvin Underwood as chairman is actively campaigning to endow it. While a number of books in French are to be found in Carnegie library, with this memorial fund it is hoped to greatly increase that number, all books being made a part of Carnegie and under its custodianship but ascribed with a special plate showing that they were to be kept as a perpetual memorial to Madame Slifer, who founded the Alliance in Atlanta.

The Alliance itself is one of the most active and socially delightful clubs in Atlanta, consisting not only of the considerable number of French people who now reside in Atlanta but in the larger number of French students, teachers, and native Atlantans who have studied and traveled abroad. Under the presidency of Charles Lordeaux, it has had a peculiarly delightful social year, and many homes of the members have been opened to its meetings, among them Winfield, the beautiful Governor Slaton home and the home of Governor Wellborn of the reserve bank; the historic old Sisson place, where Miss Doucette Landon lives, amid memorials of her distinguished grandfather, General Beauregard.

Readings, poetry, French music and little French plays, with the customary cup of tea have made the meetings things of great stimulus and charm.

The programs have been arranged by Mrs. Wellborn with Mrs. Horine and Miss Martie Slaton assisting. Charles Lordeaux is president; Mrs. John Marshall Slaton, vice president; Mrs. Walter Wellborn, second vice president; Mrs. Carl Lewis is secretary, and Professor Goodyear of Emory, treasurer. On the council are Mrs. Harry Atkinson, Mrs. Arthur Harila, Mrs. James Hickey, Mrs. M. E. Newton, and Mrs. Morris Brandon.

Auxiliary Meets In Quitman.

Quitman, Ga., March 5.—(Special.) The chief feature of a meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary American Legion, held at the home of the president, Mrs. J. W. Oglesby, was a beautiful talk by Mrs. J. L. Newbern, of Valdosta, state president. She urged the members not to let the auxiliary die because it was so much needed by ex-service men. She said the chief work at this time is for each county to get up the complete war records of ex-service men in that county and file with the state historian, Mrs. Dimmock, of Waycross. It is this done in later years descendants of these soldiers will not have the difficulty that has been experienced in trying to trace the records of Revolutionary and War Between the States soldiers.

Mrs. Newbern also stressed the need of work for the disabled in the veterans' hospitals. There are many services which can be performed for these. Assisting the local legion post is, of course, an important service. The Quitman auxiliary has done a great deal of work for the veterans' hospitals in knitting and making garments. It has secured markers for the graves of World War soldiers and has assisted the local post financially and in other ways. Mrs. Newbern was accompanied by Mrs. J. B. Johnson, of Valdosta, state secretary. After the meeting an informal reception was held.

Miss Brown Gives Tea For Mrs. Jones.

One of the loveliest social events on Wednesday's calendar was the tea at which Miss Frances Brown was hostess at the Piedmont Driving Club, the affair complimenting Mrs. Jack Jones, a recent bride and a charming addition to Atlanta's younger set of society.

Receiving with Miss Brown and Mrs. Jones were Mrs. Charles Rice Brown, mother of the hostess, and Mrs. C. C. Cogges, of Canton, Ga.

Tea was served in the blue room of the club from a beautifully appointed table having as a central decoration a plateau of pale pink roses and white narcissi, edged with a fringe of ferns and lilies of the valley. Pink tapers burned in silver candlesticks at either end of the table, and small silver compotes held mints and confections embossed in tiny pink rosebuds. The cakes and loaves further carried out the color motif of pink.

Miss Brown received her guests wearing an afternoon gown of cream lace with pale green trimmings and a pale green hat.

Mrs. Jones was a lovely figure in French blue crepe heavily beaded and worn with a black hat.

Mrs. Brown, mother of the hostess, was handsomely gowned in black velvet and lace with a hat to match.

Four friends of the hostess were invited to meet the guest of honor.

Wide Interest Manifested in MR. AND MRS. McCARY RECEIVE CONGRATULATIONS Opening of Residence Studio

BY FRANCES REMIS.

Out Peachtree way, at Thirteenth street, in the section which marks the beginning of the city's exclusive residences, is a handsome edifice once the home of prominent Atlantans, and which has been the scene of many delightful social functions in days gone by. Here in this beautiful house, remodeled and enlarged, exquisitely appointed and embellished with elegant furnishings, three gathered Wednesday a large assemblage to pay tribute to an Atlanta artist and to rejoice with him in an accomplishment which has placed him in the forefront of his profession.

It was the first day of the formal opening of the new residence studio of Mr. and Mrs. McCary, and the realization of an earnest ambition formed many years ago by Willis McCary, the owner and artist, who dreamed of raising the standard of his work to the highest degree and establishing a studio that would compare with the best of those in the larger eastern cities.

The result of his efforts marks him as the owner of the second residence studio in the south, the other being in Memphis, Tenn., and the first Atlanta photographer to desert the downtown district.

Receives Congratulations.

At the opening on Wednesday were brother photographers, a large number of business friends who had come to congratulate him, and patrons who had been his customers in the former studio occupied downtown. Hand some floral offerings from many of these attested the esteem in which the McCary company is held. The occasion savored not of the usual commercial "opening," but might have been a social function at which Mr. and Mrs. McCary were entertaining.

One enters into a large reception hall which opens through wide doors into other rooms resembling drawing rooms. It is as if one enters a private home. The walls and woodwork are done in gray, with draperies and hangings in soft neutral shades. There are handsome Oriental rugs on the floor and many pieces of rare furniture, upholstered in old and delf blues.

One Swiss carved chair is of especial interest, as is another hand wrought Chinese chair. The lighting fixtures are in the form of beautiful crystal chandeliers, prism style. On the walls are placed portraits as they should be hung in a home, the frames of these designed to harmonize with the color motif of the interior.

In these rooms is found Mrs. Willis McCary, who receives visitors with the same charming manner one would expect of the chateleine of such a place.

Other Rooms.

Back of the four reception rooms are the ladies' dressing rooms, children's play room, finishing room, negative and printing rooms and the camera room. Upstairs is the sleeping apartment of Mr. and Mrs. McCary.

The appointments of the dressing rooms are developed in the same neutral shades, with hangings of old gold and blue and attractive willow furniture. An interesting part of the equipment here is a gorgeous bride's bouquet of wax flowers, designed with such artistry as to look real. This bouquet enables the posing for photographs in a bridal gown before the day of the wedding, and is formed of orchids, bride's roses and lilies of the valley, the whole shrouded with white satin streamers and tulle ribbons brocaded in lilies of the valley.

In the children's play room, which is in charge of "Aunt Emmy," a colored mammy, are found fascinating toys, children's furniture and figures on the walls and draperies of absorb-

Oglethorpe Board Is Entertained.

An elaborate social event of Tuesday was the tea given by Mrs. Katherine Connerat at the Atlanta Woman's club in compliment to the woman's board of Oglethorpe, of which she is president.

The banquet hall, where the guests were received, was decorated with a profusion of ferns, palms and spring flowers.

Bowls of jonquils and daffodils were artistically arranged on the tables and blended effectively with the black and gold pennants of Oglethorpe used on the walls.

Mrs. Connerat received her guests wearing a gown of apple green crepe beaded in crystals.

During the afternoon the Oglethorpe orchestra furnished music. Among the speakers were Edgar Watkins, Dr. Thorawell Jacobs, William Akers, Dr. Henry Porter, John A. Copeland, J. T. Anderson, Thomas Daniel, Arthur L. Brooke, Dr. James R. Bachman and R. C. Bell.

Fulton County Humane Society Issues Report for February

According to the February report of the activities of the Georgia Humane Society, Fulton county branch, 238 animals were investigated and given the attention that their cases demanded during the past month. Of this number, many were placed in hospitals and clinics for treatment, others were ordered from the streets; others placed in homes, and eleven horses and mules were shod.

In order to acquaint the public with the work the Fulton county branch of the Georgia Humane Society is doing, Mrs. D. W. Totten, the secretary, will issue reports each month stating the numbers of cases that have been involved and the specific animals. The following statement is issued by the society:

"We want the citizens of Atlanta to know:

"That our working force is small and never idle, and that we must depend upon the co-operation of the public in reporting cases of cruelty to us.

"That in reporting a case, name and address of one making the report must be given, as well as an intelligent report of the case, naming offender if possible, otherwise giving a good description of same and the nature of the offense, and the place and time it was committed. Reports are treated as confidential.

"That there are a number of starving and homeless cats and dogs infesting our streets, and that if you are interested in a clean city, as well as the elimination of needless suffering, you will assist us by either picking them up and bringing them to our hospital or confining them in some place and phoning the hospital, try 2272, to send the small animal ambulance for them.

"That it is neither a difficult nor offensive thing to take a homeless or starving cat or dog into your fectly good car and deliver it to the hospital to be put out of its misery.

"That it is neither humane nor helpful to the society to report an injured animal, hours, or even days, after you have knowledge of its injury. Such cases should be reported at once from the nearest phone.

"That we investigate only cases of living animals. Dead and unbred animals should be reported to the sanitary department, city hall."

The Fulton county branch of the Georgia Humane Society and the Georgia Humane Society Hospital No. 1 are located at 1031-1035 Marietta street.

BOUDOIR MIRRORS OF WASHINGTON

How Mrs. Medill McCormick Broke Into Farm Community

Washington as it is—not as it pretends to be. The actuality behind the glitter, the subtleties, the desires. These make up "The Boudoir Mirrors of Washington." This series appears exclusively in this city in The Constitution. An installment is published every day.

(Copyright, 1923, in U. S. and Canada, by Women's News Service, Inc., released exclusively by the North American Newspaper Alliance.)

"Ever hear about my bargains in bulk?"

Mrs. Medill McCormick crossed legs and hugged one knee as she spoke. She was in her riding suit, dark and well-tailored, with a soft shirt and her hair dressed low to fit her hat.

She leaned forward, her face alight with interest, her dark eyes smiling humorously.

"Breaking into the farming community isn't easy, not even if you are a millionaire. They seem to hate you for that, distrust you. But it is business and the farmer will eventually listen to arguments based on dollars. He's no different from any other business man."

"I had bred a lot of young bulls and I was trying to persuade the farmers that it was just as cheap to feed a purchased as a grade bull and much more profitable. The farmer is awfully conservative. He wouldn't buy. He suspected some trick; he hated the idea of being taught anything by a city woman. So I put up a big notice on my farm gate: BARGAINS IN BULLS."

It was no good. The farmer wouldn't buy, not even at $25. So I stopped an old man one day, and asked him why he wouldn't come in on my bull bargain.

"The old man said he had farmed all his life the way he was doing it now, and that was good enough for him. He didn't want any new fangled notions."

"I offered to give him a bull for nothing, at least. I'll turn it out on the road," he said, and drove on.

"That was a few years ago. But I stuck to it and now you should see him coming over to buy my young bulls."

What led to the cows?

I happened to be listening in on this conversation one day, when Ruth McCormick was telling about her adventure in the dairy business, and it struck me as typical. That's the kind of woman she is. Through!

She was a millionaire, of course, before she married the McCormicks, but it was ten years before any babies came. Then one, little Katharine, became very ill, and Mrs. McCormick discovered that most of the milk being sold in Chicago wasn't fit for delicate children.

That started her thinking, thinking seriously, about the money, the energy, and the ability to try her experiment. Now she runs a model dairy farm at Rock River and does located a certain sum for the purpose and it has to cover the experiment. When the bull puts his head through the window for the tenth time, the window stays broken, if funds are low. The farm has to carry the farming expenses. But the babies of Chicago are getting better milk—pure, clean milk, and Ruth McCormick is one of the active brains at the root of the movement.

She preached in church one Sunday at Rock River, No. 1, her text wasn't "Bargains in Bulls." But the preacher had been suddenly taken ill and he asked her if she would speak to the congregation for him.

She did. Her text didn't come out of the Bible but she got her points home, and it was a rattling good sermon. Of course, facing an audience wasn't new to her. She has been a political campaigner for many years and she can size up the psychology of an audience quicker than most speakers.

Learned Politics Early

Few women in official life have the versatility, the dynamic personality of Mrs. McCormick. She is a clever politician, an ardent suffragist, social leader, expert horsewoman, effective writer, and successful farmer. She is simple and direct in her methods and very businesslike.

As a daughter of Mark Hanna she learned the political game early. She played a prominent part in the fascinating life at the "Little White House," which had been famous for nearly a century as the fashionable place for wit, beauty, fashion and statesmanship.

Not even during its prominence as a political stronghold throughout the Civil War did this celebrated old

Taylor mansion on Jackson Place attain the distinction that came to it through Mark Hanna's famous country sausage and pancake breakfasts.

It is said that the hospitality and sausage often masked political batteries of the powerful republican leader, to whom politics was the breath of life.

However, these repasts became an institution that were the joy of hotelier and epicure and the ambition of the uninitiated into Washington society.

Ruth was her father's idol and she accepted his friends as her own. She was particularly devoted to the Roosevelts.

While Mrs. McCormick runs the farm as a private enterprise of her own, and not as the wife of a farmer, she takes time off to keep a finger on the political pulse. She always goes with her husband on his travels and even learned stenography to assist him. Oh, she's thorough in her methods. I can tell you.

But she finds time to play. She loves her horse, and the whole family rides every day, every one of them. That is part of life's program.

Tomorrow: Mrs. Herbert Hoover.

Sumter Women Plan To Sell Poultry At Atlanta Market

Americus, Ga., March 5.—(Special.)—The Sumter County Women's council is engaged in making a study of marketing conditions with the view of increasing poultry production here. Mrs. T. M. A. Finch and Mrs. W. H. Houston have been named a committee to cooperate with the American and Sumter County Chambers of Commerce, and their first efforts will be directed toward the cooperative marketing of eggs.

These women proposed to designate two days in each week for sales will be held with one or two of their number in charge, and shipments made direct from Americus to Macon, Atlanta, Savannah, and other cities where a demand for poultry product exists.

During the past year large quantities of poultry and poultry products have been produced in Sumter county, but some difficulty has been experienced in securing a satisfactory market for them. Cooperative selling, it is believed, will solve this problem.

HEARTS AFIRE

The Brilliant Novelist of Modern Society

INSTALLMENT 64.

Dusk in the Woods.

Prudence spoke with such earnest conviction that for a moment Virginia was almost cowed.

To have the shallowness, the innate selfishness of one's nature set forth with simple directness, is rather disconcerting, even to a bold, unscrupulous creature as this woman was.

And then she found her tongue, giving a hollow, would-be sarcastic laugh that sounded like a creak.

"Little angel of superiority! Who gave you the right to dictate to me?"

Prudence kept her clear, level gaze upon her.

"The right of a very deep and honest admiration for the man you're going to marry."

"Ha! Ha! That's a good one! So you do admit you're wild about him, just as I thought you were? He'll laugh when I go and tell him."

"He won't laugh," said Prudence with acute perception. "Because you won't lower yourself to explain to him the mission that brought you here."

Virginia tossed her head.

"If you flatter yourself that Peter would think me jealous of a girl who was under a cloud for . . . well, I don't like to call it stealing . . . but he knows about the diamonds and the money being found on you . . ."

"Stop!" The younger girl's air was so commanding that Virginia again was overawed. Prudence opened a gate in the hedge. "I ask you to go at once, and never enter my home or grounds again. Go, quickly!"

And so Virginia departed, minus battle honors, and hot to the very ears. The Page girl had got the best of her, and come off with flying colors, while she—Virginia—with all her "culture" and travel and social superiority, had lowered herself and lost her temper and mislaid her breeding.

"Indicted as a common scold!" She had once read a funny court case where a woman was fined for quarreling. She felt now as humiliated as that woman must have felt!

Prudence, meantime, oddly stimulated by the encounter, and with a queer, new hope a-flutter in her heart for it had been but too obvious that Peter's fiancée was jealous of her, and maybe there was some reason . . . Maybe Peter's heart wasn't won by Virginia, after all? . . . Prudence went into the kitchen of Green Gables, and baked some special little cakes for tea, and set out a dainty little meal in the sitting room for her mother and herself, and talked gaily with her mother, and was so bright and happy-seeming that the latter feared about her daughter's peace of mind were set at rest.

"You're not fretting any longer over that miserable business at the Towers, my dear," said Mrs. Page, looking reassuringly at Prudence. "The real thief has been found, and truth will set you free. And so you're right to stop worrying and be your happy self again."

But through the remainder of the afternoon, the girl's thoughts circled round that episode.

Gradually, she came to connect Bert Graymore's visit to the woods with the happening at Winston Towers. When the money and the diamonds were discovered in her sash—she recalled now the sly, furtive look in Traymore's eyes.

There had been exactly that same look in his eyes when the sound of horse's hoofs had disturbed him when he was fumbling at the bottom of the elm-tree.

What was he doing there?

He had been digging in the ground with a small implement of some sort, and then putting the earth and leaves into position again.

Was he hiding something?

Wasn't it possible that on the evening of the dinner party at the Towers, he had contrived to slip the money and the valuable earrings into his sash, to divert suspicion from himself? When Mrs. Vansittart discovered her loss, it was Bert who came to Prudence asking her to go and see her hostess. Wasn't it feasible that, knowing discovery might light upon himself, he had slipped the things into her loose sash?

The only thing to do was visit the little wood, find the tall elm tree, dig down, and maybe unearth other stolen goods this man had confiscated.

Prudence—despite the painfulness of the situation—felt an anticipatory thrill of excitement.

She contrived to steal away from Green Gables towards eight o'clock, and reached the glade where the beech-leaves made a fairy green, following the course of a tiny stream that glided under delicate willows.

Behind the glade there was a wood of tall elms, and—yes—there, about fifty yards from where she stood, was the very tree round whose base Bert Traymore had been digging.

Glancing about her to see she wasn't watched, Prudence hurried to the spot, and took a trowel from a little basket she was carrying.

She worked intently for at least twenty minutes, but found nothing there.

She knew this was the tree, because—although there were other trees nearby and round it—this was an elm. The other elms were father back.

No, nothing hidden in the ground!

First Operalogue At Woman's Club Most Successful

"Misereere," "Back to Our Mountains," as sung by Mrs. Bess Merrill Smith, Mrs. Jack Lester and Clifford Durham, and the famous Tower scene, presented by Miss Ada Evelyn Lewis, were the outstanding features of the popular operalogue, "Il Trovatore," when presented by the Atlanta Woman's club Wednesday afternoon.

The beautiful tragedy of Leonora's love for the "Trovatore" was full of pathos, as Miss Lewis, charming dramatic reader, interpreted the story of the "burning at stake" of her own mother and the horrible mistake of having cast her own infant into the flames instead of the stolen child, brother to the Count de Luna. Grated as she was, she did not betray to Leonora, her adopted son, that he was the stolen child, but swore vengeance on the count for the slaying of her mother.

Then comes the love of Manrico and Leonora, which is intercepted by the count, because of his own infatuation for the beautiful maiden, which results in the imprisonment of Manrico, the poisoning of Leonora, by her own fair hand, to save her lover from the stake.

But finding himself crossed by death, the count slays the troubadour before the eyes of his adopted mother, Azucena, and this is when she wreaks her vengeance by telling him that Manrico is his brother, who was stolen some twenty years before.

Tragic though it was, this wonderful full story was most charmingly rendered by five of Atlanta's greatest artists in music and drama. Mrs. Frances Stovall Forder, gifted musician, was at the piano and accompanied the vocal selections from the opera in a most artistic manner.

Mrs. Bess Merrill Smith, who directed the music, was at her best with her rich contralto voice, and with Mr. Durham, received quite an ovation in the rendition of "Home to Our Mountains," the duet of Manrico and his foster mother, Azucena.

Mrs. Jack Lester, in her delightful soprano, responded charmingly with Mr. Durham to an enthusiastic encore for "Misereere" as sung by Leonora and Manrico in the Tower scene. Especially artistic was the gypsy scene of Azucena's confession, as read by Miss Lewis at the close of the operalogue, when the count realizes the horror of his jealousy and its results.

The stage setting for "Il Trovatore" was most artistically arranged by Mrs. Harry Poole, assisted by Mrs. J. R. Brockman, which presented a beautiful garden, with palms and ferns, dotted with colored blossoms.

Mr. Alonzo Richardson, president of the Woman's club, presented the artists of the occasion, paying them a beautiful tribute for their loyal support of the club through their excellent talents. She announced as the next operalogue to be presented by the Woman's club next week, "Boris Godunoff."

Dr. Loveridge Gives Lecture.

"Everyone has a philosophy of life whether he knows it or not," declared Dr. Blanch Grosbee Loveridge in her lecture for the City Federation of Women's clubs, Wednesday morning in the Ansley room, "but in order to understand it—to understand his own life, he must grow in a knowledge of the God-Father, the infinite mind."

The first of the great laws, compensation, or the invisible method of control, Dr. Loveridge discussed with scintillating clearness and precision, laying special stress upon the most practical phases with which life is usually concerned.

Mrs. Burke Gives Parties.

Mrs. Arthur J. Burke was hostess Wednesday at the first of a series of bridge-luncheons at her home on Ponce de Leon avenue.

An artistic arrangement of spring flowers decorated the rooms where the game was played, followed by luncheon at the individual tables.

The top score prize was an impromptu vase, second prize handpainted candlesticks and consolation French novelty.

The hostess was assisted in entertaining by Mrs. Marvin Conway.

On Thursday Mrs. Burke will also entertain at a bridge-luncheon.

She went quite deep, too, all round the base where one could sit.

After that, she tried some other trees, but could find nothing.

Then dusk came.

She was glad that she had brought a flashlight with her.

Sitting back on her heels, Prudence rested before starting on the home ward route.

Dusk fell rapidly. It was nearly dark now in the wood, and she was about to rise, when suddenly she heard a sound quite close—moving steps, very cautious and looked around.

At a woman's walking a liberally, to a certain tree. The woman wore a long, loose cloak, and a soft hat crushed down low, to shade her face, and when she reached the tree, which was quite near, Prudence she stopped and lit a lantern, setting it carefully on the ground.

THE vast difference in portraiture comes with the ability of the photographer to visualize his mental picture, and to give a touch of distinction to each and every subject—perhaps in expression—perhaps in another of the hundreds of unique rules of composition.

Clever insights upon just how each subject will look best have been studied completely and scientifically by McCrary Artists. They have studied under and worked with the leading portraitists in the country—such famous artists as Will H. Towles, of Washington; Pierre MacDonald, of New York City, and Howard D. The Money You Pay For Service Comes Back To Georgia

THAT the Telephone Company is a larger spender than a collector is a fact known to very few.

The Bell System invests in new plant and spends for operating expenses, such as wages and taxes, and for supplies purchased in Georgia during one year, as much money as it collects from the public for telephone service.

The millions of dollars we poured into Georgia last year, no doubt, contributed to the commercial progress and prosperity of the State, while a large part of the money we collected for service found its way back to local communities where the telephone workers of Georgia are home builders and citizens.

The money you pay is for service, the value of which it is difficult to estimate. Its efficiency and continued extension is due not only to the loyalty of faithful workers and the confidence of investors, but in a large measure to your cordial interest and co-operation.

Wooden Wives

—By Laura Jean Libbey—

As Pauline watched him, so different from the other gentlemen about him—the words of both Hughey Boyd and Reardon occurred to her. "Mated to a clown." Amidst her shame over his uncouthness, she felt a degree of pity for him; he was trying so hard to remake his life, make of himself what she wished him to be. Every man with whom he came in contact, recognized his sterling qualities, and took to him accordingly. The hearts of the proud of the society women warmed to him. Very quickly he gained the sobriquet of "the rough diamond of the senate." A second Abe Lincoln.

The great inaugural ball, which he was obliged to attend, exhorting Pauline, fixed the status of Daniel Westlow's popularity in Washington. As he heard Pauline that night, he remembered her in all the long years of pain that followed. She was fairly radiant in a sheath-like gown of shimmering silver tulle, and pearls. Her golden hair was wound by a fillet of pearls, pearls encircling her dainty white throat.

"I can hardly believe that so superb a creature—belonging to me!" he whispered as they entered the spacious reception room. Pauline laughed heartily; she knew that he meant from the bottom of his heart, every word of the compliment—and that careless merry laugh was the last one that crossed her lips for many a long and weary year. Ah! how little do we realize what a few hours may bring forth to change the course of human lives.

Amidst the vast throng of beautiful women, Pauline's name, heavily shrouded in the mist of the past, the poetry of grace and motion, Daniel, a wallflower in a far-off corner, watched her with his heart in his eyes. Amidst all that gorgeousness, the world's beauties, he saw only—Pauline.

He returned to the heart's core to see other men's arms about her in the dance, and ere the ball was over, under way, he was wishing heartily that the evening was over, and he could leave Pauline away from the throng of admirers—home to her home—and his.

During the course of the evening, even amidst the vast throng, the gracious first lady of America had singled out the lonely patient man, and sent for him to be brought to her.

Daniel hesitated, abashed, but was finally coaxed, being escorted to her. She held out her hand, welcoming him so kindly and graciously that somehow, he felt at ease with her at once. Despite the demands upon her, she took time to converse with him a few moments. She knew a family who lived in Oklahoma City—close friends of his. That settled it. He no longer felt like a forlorn stranger; he had found in the president's gracious wife a mutual friend.

It was in excellent spirits as their automobile whirled their homeward. "I had a present for you, my dear—something I aimed you about at that ball—but I forgot all about it until I saw something like it on a girl. You shall have it as soon as we reach home. It is in my old bureau pocket. Poor Mrs. Bemis packed the coat thinking I might need it; she did not know what fine togetherness Washingtonians wear—bless her dear heart."

Due to the lateness of the hour, when they arrived home, Pauline waited until the morning to discover what Daniel's present to her could be. That it was something of small value, she concluded, otherwise he would not have thrust it into his overcoat pocket, forgetting all about it until now.

Up in the storeroom she found the contents of the trunk were in neat piles upon shelves and tables, awaiting her orders as to their disposition. She found the overcoat he had been wont to wear "out home" without difficulty, the thought passing through her mind that Mrs. Bemis must have been in the greatest kind of a hurry when she packed it, that she had not taken time to clear the pockets of their contents. In this surmise she was quite correct.

Some half a dozen pockets were looked through ere Pauline found one with something in it, evidently, besides handkerchiefs and pieces of string.

The pocket yielded two packages, one small, the other a trifle larger. As there was nothing about either to indicate which was for her, she proceeded to open both. The smaller package contained a wrist watch. With a smile on her lips she turned carelessly to the other package, opening it. One glance, and the blood in her veins stood still; the heart in her bosom seemed to break with one awful throb; the sunlight that streamed in through the window suddenly darkened, and the world to stand still.

She struggled to the window and threw open the shutters; she wondered that she did not fall dead then and there.

The opened package on which her horrified eyes gazed, contained—the pin which had been torn from her father on the train during that sensational holdup, and, twisted about it was a torn bit of the never-to-be-forgotten necktie that had caught and held her gaze on that occasion. As she held it in her shaking hand, a horrible query forced itself on her brain—who was the masked bandit? Had she—she—murdered him? She reached her own apartment without encountering any of the servants; once there, she fell into a deep swoon among the bare-bells that adorned the velvet carpet.

She was just recovering as Daniel entered the room; he had returned for some important papers which he had forgotten. He sprang toward her with a cry of alarm, exclaiming agonizedly, "Pauline, my darling wife, are you ill?"

As he uttered the words, he bent forward to raise her to her feet. "Stop! do not touch me!" she screamed, covering from him as she struggled to her feet. "If you laid your hand on me—it would kill me. I know you now—for what you are!—and I abhor you. You deserve no pity at my hands, only scorn and the deepest hatred. I will try and think out which way duty lies—to send for my father and tell him all—or—again fight and just hide my discovery—from the world—suffering in silence!"

Daniel Westlow's arms dropped to his side; he was too utterly astonished for words; he gazed at her with dilated eyes, wondering at his young wife had suddenly lost her reason; surely that must be it. Tears sprang to his eyes; he held out his arms to her in an agony of emotion, saying huskily:

"My darling, my love, let your husband comfort you; come to my arms, dear, and tell me what is the matter, what has so excited you—that you are in this state of mind?"

The bitterest, most scornful laugh that was ever heard fell from Pauline's lips. She drew herself up to her fullest height, gazing at him with blazing eyes, her voice choking with scorn as she answered:

"Never presume to address me in those terms again! Henceforth we are strangers. If you would give me peace, rid me of your despised—presence!" With these words she turned swiftly and entered an inner room, closing the door after her. He heard the key turn in the lock.

To Daniel, this sort of a life was intolerable, he determined it must cease at any cost, yet each day he realized her more and more.

He threw himself heart and soul into his work. The senator who came out of the west was becoming a power. His opponents in senatorial battles soon discovered he was a foe to be feared of their steel. They told each other he was another Abraham Lincoln. His speeches got into print far and wide. He took up the rights of the common people, and labored hard for them—many a great corporation feared senator Westlow—the unapproachable. He was the friend of the poor and down-trodden.

Pauline read and heard his praise, but her attitude toward him did not change. One thought was constantly in her mind:

"Alas, that a man can smile—and—smiling, be a—villain!"

Honors, glory had come to Daniel Westlow—yet, through it all, he was one of the most wretched, sorrowful, and in addition, the loneliest of men. He had missed the one great thing that makes life worth living—Love.

The one woman on earth whose affections he craved—would have given every drop of blood in his heart to win—spurned him, age, loathed him. At this stage of affairs, Daniel learned, through hearing Pauline giving orders to the housekeeper, that

Miss Marcelle Vallean was coming to pay her a visit of some weeks during the summer. Perhaps the clever French girl would soon notice how matters stood between Pauline and himself, and be the good angel of both, by patching up their differences. He hoped and prayed so.

Noon brought Marcelle, more beautiful than ever. Pauline marvelled at the change in her, observing she was a veritable fashion plate. She greeted Pauline effusively, in turn, Pauline flung her arms about her, saying wistfully: "I am so glad you are come—I am so lonesome."

Lonesome! a bride, and lonesome! Marcelle caught at the words as a drowning person catches at a straw. She took both of Pauline's hands in hers, gazing at her—fixedly.

"Dearie—you have been crying," she whispered. "You are—unhappy—is it not so?" "There is nothing so yearned for, as some one to whom one can unburden one's self—and be sure of sympathy."

The clever shaft struck home—went directly to Pauline's sore heart; she burst into tears, hiding her head on Marcelle's shoulder.

"You are nursing a secret sorrow," murmured Marcelle, drawing her to an adjacent sofa, and seating herself beside her, her arms still twined about Pauline. "Confide in me, dearie—you are not happy with Daniel Westlow—just as I feared."

Pauline looked up through blinding tears into Marcelle's face.

"You are right," she whispered chokingly. "Daniel and I are wretchedly at odds with other—we do not speak—except—before strangers—I cannot tell you—why."

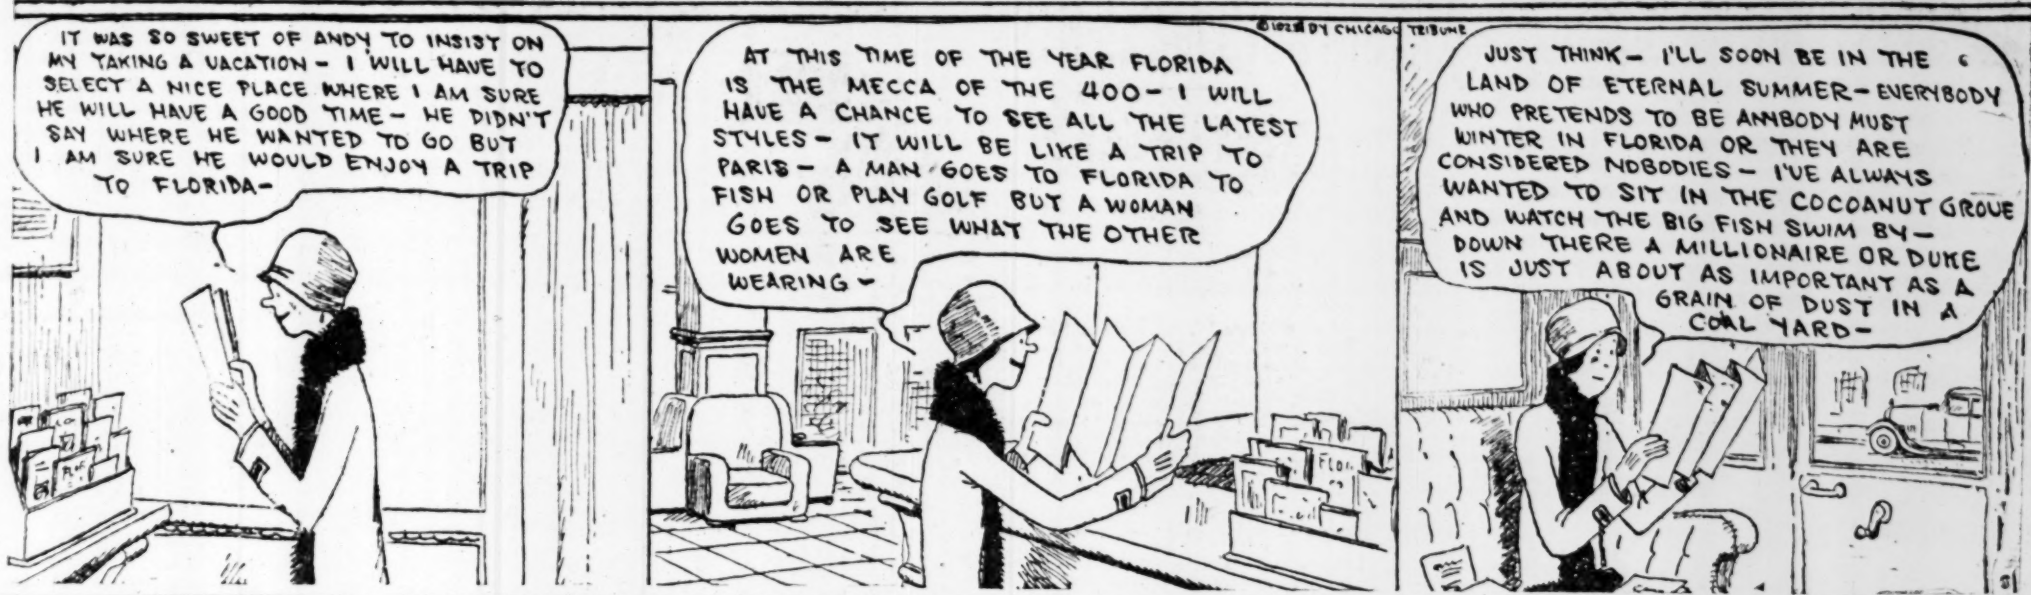

CHAPTER XIII. "What is home with none to meet—None to welcome, none to greet us? Home is sweet—and only sweet Where there's one we love to meet us!"

As Marcelle was to be their only guest, Pauline did not take special pains with her toilette, donning the first gown at hand—a violet chiffon, without stopping to consider others which were still more becoming to her blond loveliness.

Not so Marcelle; she selected her dinner gown with as much care as though she expected to meet some one who would be quite unable to resist her superb beauty. Her choice was a black lace that draped her perfect figure, and set off the creamy tint of her beautiful face, long, graceful neck, and exquisitely proportioned arms as nothing else could have done. Her blue-black hair was pinned close to her shapely head. Her hands like lily leaves, with their pink palms, were not marred by even the smallest of jewels—her only ornament being a splendid, glowing, America beauty rose which she wore at her belt.

BY R. L. BARNUM
New York, March 5.—Dodge Brothers turned out 25,000 cars in February against 19,000 in January. Hupmobile's production was 3,115 against 3,152; Hudson and Essex 13,114 against 10,000; Chevrolet, 163,461 against 10,800; and March production planned at 50,000; Ford 176,164 cars and trucks last month against 161,363 for January, the Buick division of General Motors reports 1925 production at 278,287, nearly 50,000 more than for the last year.

Since the end of 1923 loans, discounts and investments of 78 leading banks throughout the country have decreased $1,400,000, while new deposits during the same period, according to figures made public today, have increased $244,356,000.

Franklin will be on a vacation abroad of several months with nothing to say regarding the business, financial, economic and political situation or outlook. P. A. S. Franklin, president of the Bank of P. seldom talked for publication; in fact, he did mighty little talking for publication or otherwise; his method in his day of acknowledged leadership was to think about nothing, then in the fewest possible words order those to "sign here."

When the present J. P. assumed control of the house of Morgan he frequently gave out the views of the masters of general financial interest. For the past few years, however, he has been growing more and more reticent. Franklin belongs to the class of prominent financiers who never seek publicity but who are always willing to talk frankly to Wall street newsmen in whom they have confidence.
